Making Desperate Effort to Represent Him as an Enemy of Organized Labor Because He Will Not Violate U. S. Constitution.

THE UNDERHAND ATTACK WILL LIKELY PROVE FUTILE

President of the Knights of Labor Refuses to Become Involved in the Controversy—Miller Case Is Made One Basis of Attack—G. A. R. Also to Be Drawn in If Possible.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Room 10, Postal Building,
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20.

One of the greatest political conspiracies in the history of the United States has been concocted and is now in process of execution. It has for its object the defeat of President Roosevelt next year. Conceived in Wall street by men whose business interests have been interfered with by the policy of the administration, and calling to its aid men of various political complexions who harbor personal grievances against the president or who hope for official or financial reward, this plot contemplates the accomplishment of its object through various means. At present the labor unions are being used, and the Grand Army of the Republic is likewise to be the victim of the agents of the conspirators.

For months the friends of President Roosevelt have been aware that there was a strong influence in the east, referred to indefinitely as "the Wall street interests," that would spare neither money nor anything else to accomplish the defeat of Roosevelt next year. But this influence was at work beneath the surface of affairs, and the only evidence of its doings was contained in the columns of the newspapers that were known to be unfriendly to the president.

These publications were not open attacks upon the personality or the official acts of the president, but were covert editorials and colored news articles all prepared with the object of making the president appear ridiculous before the public and of casting doubt upon his sincerity and ability.

Labor troubles were stirred up here and in New York as well as in other parts of the country, and while President Roosevelt was not held directly responsible, by these guerilla journals, yet indirectly all the troubles of organized labor were laid at his door.

Within the past week more of the development of this conspiracy have come to light and the plotters have become bolder. The Miller case has been selected as the ostensible excuse for open attacks upon the president that have been made within the last few days.

Miller, it will be remembered, was discharged as assistant foreman of the government printing office because he had been expelled from the bookbinders' union. The case was taken to the president, who ordered Miller's reinstatement and declared that the government printing office should be "open," that a man's non-unionism should not be a bar to his employment there. Then the union preferred charges against Miller, affecting his moral character and action on those charges is still pending.

Movement Against Roosevelt.

Recently the Central Labor union of Washington passed resolutions calling upon the president to modify his order making the printing office an open shop, and to order Miller's dismissal from the service. Labor organizations all over the country were urged to petition the president to this affect and to concur with the Central Labor union in the statement that the action of President Roosevelt "cannot be regarded in any but an unfriendly light."

Copies of this resolution were sent out to labor unions in every section of the country and responses have been coming in during the past week. Tomorrow night there will be a meeting of the Central Labor union, when it will be seen how this plan of campaign is taking among the people.

To those who are familiar with the situation, this action is but another, and as yet the most visible evidence of the work that is being done by the conspirators who are seeking the defeat of Roosevelt. It is not believed that the Central Labor union as a body is a party to the plot, but there is evidence that it is being used to serve the purpose that the enemies of President Roosevelt most desire.

Is Asked to Back Down.

The president is asked to back down from his position that the government printing office must be open to union and non-union men alike. This is impossible. It would be illegal, and the president would never consider it. Nor would any other president. Therefore the Central Labor union is being steered by somebody against a stone wall. And since the president cannot concede what is asked, the question as it has been raised gives his enemies a good opportunity to scatter broadcast the impression that he is unfriendly to organized labor.

Here is the kernel to the nut. He is asked to grant something that the Constitution of the United States would not permit him to grant, even if he desired to do so, and therefore he is to be branded as unfriendly to organized labor. The Central Labor union is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, and there has been considerable interest manifested as to what attitude Samuel Gompers, president of the parent organization, will take in the matter. As yet Mr. Gompers has not indicated his stand. He has declined to see newspaper men or to give his views on the matter. John W. Hayes, grand master workman of the Knights of Labor, does not think that the movement will prove successful in embarrassing President Roosevelt politically.

Is a Political Question.

"I do not believe it will amount to anything," said he. "Organized labor will not be influenced in this matter, in my opinion. It is not a labor question any more; it is a political one." Further than this Mr. Hayes would not discuss the matter.

Some of the president's friends will not be surprised at this turn of affairs. Several weeks ago Charles W. Skinner, state superintendent of education of New York, said to me at Albany:

"This labor turmoil is something that we must look out for. The labor element is being stirred up all over the country, especially in New York city, and if the opportunity offers the enemies of Roosevelt will try to get him involved in such a way as to make it appear that he is not friendly to organized labor. Such a charge would have no foundation, but if it were circulated extensively and an effort made to convince the laboring element that it was true, it would possibly do harm."

Other politicians in New York state talked along the same lines, and their foresight has been justified by the turn affairs have taken within a fortnight. A man who is familiar with conditions here and who would not permit his name to be used said yesterday:

Some Deep Scheme in it.

"There is some deep scheme behind this labor agitation against the president. I do not know what it is, but it is not hard to guess that somebody is trying to injure the political prospects of Roosevelt. As a matter of fact, the Central Labor union is run by two men, who dominate all its affairs. These two men are in turn dominated by President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor.

"Now, is there a man who has more influence with Mr. Gompers and with John Mitchell of the miners than Senator Hanna? He can straighten this matter out in short order and prevent the erroneous impression from going abroad that the president is opposed to organized labor. He is chairman of the Republican national committee, and as such it seems to me that it is his duty to look after the president's interests, especially as he has declared in favor of Roosevelt next year and his state has indorsed Roosevelt's candidacy in convention at Columbus. The Central Labor union and the unions that are co-operating with it are being used for political purposes, and when they find it out there will be a reaction in favor of the president, and the manipulators of this scheme will suffer."

But the labor unions are not the only ones who are being used in this great conspiracy. The plotters have their eyes on the veterans of the civil war and work is now being carried on in the hope of swinging the Grand Army of the Republic into line against Roosevelt. A man who claims to know what he is talking about said to me:

The Bureau in New York.

"There is at this time in operation in New York city a bureau that has for its object the turning of the Grand Army against Roosevelt. I know what I am talking about, for I have been in the headquarters and know the people who are interested in the movement.

"This bureau is in charge of a man who was discharged by President Roosevelt, and he took a prominent part in the New York state encampment and in the national encampment at San Francisco. I also know that the expenses of this bureau are being paid by Wall street men from personal subscriptions and not by any political party. What success this bureau is meeting with I do not know, but I know that the object of it is to turn the Grand Army against Roosevelt, and work to that end is going on all the time."

Up to the present time the work of those engaged in the conspiracy has been of a negative character. The slogan has been "Anything to Beat Roosevelt." But it is expected that in a short time their efforts will be concentrated upon some opposition candidate.

It will not be Mr. Hearst or Mr. Gorman or Judge Parker, or any of the Democratic candidates spoken of. The plan, from the best information obtainable, is to try to beat Roosevelt in the convention. He has enough votes pledged by the indorsement of state conventions to nominate him, but the hope is that enough complimentary votes for favorite sons may develop to prevent a nomination at the outset and give an opportunity for a compromise candidate.

Will Consider Miles.

This scheme is not being banked upon to any great extent, but it will be tried, and if it should fail, then an effort will be made to get a Democratic candidate nominated in whom Wall street interests

NEW GOVERNOR IS IN FAVOR OF CANAL

Obaldia Proposes to Use Ballot in Interest of Another Panama Treaty.

THE PEOPLE ARE WITH HIM

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

Panama, Colombia, Sept. 20.—Senator Obaldia today took over the functions of governor of Panama. The event was the occasion for great popular demonstrations by all parties. It is thought that the appointment of Gov. Obaldia may perhaps exert influences against secessionist ideas, not only because he is a native of Panama, which fact engages for him the sympathies of all, but because his appointment apparently is part of a general plan, the result of which will be the election of Gen. Reyes to the presidency and the approval of a canal treaty satisfactory to the United States.

Gov. Obaldia, in reply to Dr. Florentine, Goenaga, president of the high court of justice, said:

"I maintain, because they were well meditated, the sincere opinions I expressed as a senator of the republic. I consider that the interests of the world urgently demand the construction of a canal and they have a right to ask our co-operation. The concessions, the object of which is to serve these interests, though they may imply a sacrifice of sovereignty, are not against the national dignity. We cannot deny civilization what it requires from us to continue its victorious marches."

All the speeches delivered at today's function, not only by isthmaians but by natives of the rest of the republic, demonstrated that all the inhabitants of Panama are in favor of the treaty.

WANAMAKER JURY HAS REACHED A DECISION

Early Yesterday Morning a Verdict Was Agreed Upon and Will Be Announced Today.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BEAVER, PA., Sept. 20.—The jury in the Robinson-Wanamaker slander case has returned a sealed verdict. It will be opened by Judge J. Shayse Wilson when court convenes at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. No one has been able to discover what conclusion the jurors reached.

Judge Wilson and the attorneys for both sides waited at the court house until last midnight, thinking that the jury would report. It was 2 o'clock this morning when the verdict was agreed upon. Judge Wilson refused to receive the finding on Sunday.

The jurors wrangled much over the testimony, as scraps of conversation emenating from the jury room would indicate. One man was heard to contend that a witness had given certain testimony. He was promptly called a liar by a brother juror.

Big Mass Meeting in Columbus by Friends of Dead Leader Declares for Irish Republic.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 20.—The Robert Emmet Centennial celebration held here today was participated in by Irish-Americans from all sections of Ohio. It is estimated that 25,000 excursionists were brought into the city. The principal speakers were James F. Dolan of Syracuse, N. Y., national president A. O. H., and John T. Keating of Columbus, former national president of the order.

Tonight a mass meeting held at the Board of Trade auditorium under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the A. O. H. was addressed by Rev. L. W. Mulhane of Mount Vernon. Resolutions were adopted favoring the establishment of an Irish republic.

SAILOR'S HEADLONG DIVE SAVED A DROWNING GIRL

Jackie on the Cruiser Prairie Made Heroic Rescue in the Delaware River.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—In the presence of more than 1,000 persons, a sailor on the cruiser Prairie at League Island dived from the ship's deck into the Delaware today and saved from drowning Mary Emberlin, aged 16 years, who was knocked off a float in the dock by an over-eager crowd waiting to visit the battleship Maine.

The girl visited the navy yard with the family of her uncle. The visitors wished to board the Maine. Two small launches were engaged in conveying the visitors to and from the wharf to the big fighting craft. A float reached by a narrow gangway served as a landing place. All afternoon the gangway and float were crowded.

There was excitement on the float when a man sprang upon it from the high wharf. In the commotion Miss Emberlin, who was on the outer edge, was accidentally crowded into the water. When she arose to the surface she was too far out for outstretched hands to reach her. The girl had gone down for a second time when Hamilton Acker, who, with a dozen shipmates, stood watching the crowd from the Prairie's deck, leaped over the rail, making a dive of more than 20 feet. Without any apparent trouble he brought the girl ashore. Miss Emberlin, while half hysterical, was uninjured, save for her cold plunge.

Young Woman Arrested for Drunkenness, Attempts to Commit Suicide.

ST. JOSEPH, MICH., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—Miss Myrtle Bell of Hancock, tried to commit suicide in the city jail at Houghton, Mich., last night under sensational circumstances. Overcome with shame for being arrested on the charge of drunkenness she took the braids of her dress, twisted them into a rope, attached it to the ceiling of her cell and tied the other end around her neck and stepped off the bunk.

William Anderson, a teamster, by chance entered the city jail. No turnkey or keys were to be found to unlock the cell door. The young woman was strangling before Anderson's eyes. With much difficulty he managed to get his arms through the bars and with his pocket knife cut the woman down. Medical assistance was immediately summoned and at midnight the attending physicians announced the victim out of danger.

Miss Bell, who is 21 years old, comes from a highly respected family of Hancock, Mich.

Philadelphia Doctor Says It Creates a Predisposition for Consumption.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—(Special.)—"Keep away from the alcohol in every form. That way lies death." This is a summary of one of the most important and striking passages in Dr. Lawrence F. Flick's new book, "Consumption, a curable and preventable disease." Dr. Flick has this to say of the need for fresh air and sunshine:

"An ample supply of good, fresh outdoor air, night and day, is necessary. It must be had irrespective of weather and temperature. When possible consumptives should sleep out doors at night. Alcoholism," continues Dr. Flick, "not only kills the individual, but appears to produce a predisposition for consumption in the offspring."

OFFICERS STOP MOB VIOLENCE

Police Arrive at Corks Run in Time to Save Italian from Lynching.

STARTED FROM A SMALL FIGHT

Accused of stabbing a boy without cause, Vera, an Italian lamplighter on the Panhandle railroad, yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock was caught by a mob of white men at Corks Run and would have given up his life at the end of a rope but for the sudden arrival of the police of Sheraden.

Not believing their fellow countryman guilty, the Italian settlement took his part, and hundreds of angry, gesticulating foreigners, armed with knives and rusty revolvers, were prepared to rush down on the lynching bee just as Officers Charles Cole and E. O'Connor arrived. By the assistance of several railroad detectives the officers from Sheraden succeeded in quieting the mob and getting control of Vera.

Vera, so it is claimed, was lighting a switch lamp on the Panhandle near Corks run late during the afternoon, when, molested by a crowd of boys, he drew a knife and stabbed a young fellow named George McKinnon. The others fled.

The news went from one to another until within a short time the Italian was caught by a dozen strong hands and marched from the railroad tracks to a tree. The crowd fast increased until it assumed unmanageable proportions. Vera protested all the while that he was innocent and swore, in broken English, to do anything to escape lynching. His cries were heard by his friends, who promptly made ready to rescue him. The two officers from Sheraden, after getting Vera, took him to the Esplen jail where he was confined. The father of McKinnon will make information against the prisoner this morning for assault. The boy was not badly hurt.

The Italian tells a very different story. He says that while lighting a lamp he was approached by a number of boys who struck and robbed him of $45. He said that he carried a revolver, which was also taken from him. He would not admit the stabbing, however. The railroad detectives at Sheraden are carrying on an independent investigation.

FAMILY QUARREL LED TO SHOCKING TRAGEDY

Aged Man Shot His Son-in-Law and Then Sent Bullet Into His Own Brain.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 20.—James Mears, 70 years of age, today shot and fatally wounded his son-in-law, Michael Crotty, 35 years of age, and then sent a bullet through his own brain, dying instantly. Family quarrels were the cause of the crime.

A year ago Mears deeded some property to his daughter, Katherine, stipulating she should not marry and that she should provide for him until his death. Katherine was married to Crotty three months ago. Recently affairs in the household had not been running smoothly. Last Wednesday their domestic affairs were aired in the police court, Crotty, who had been arrested on a warrant secured by the old man for assault, was discharged.

Today, while Crotty and his wife were in the dining-room, Mears came into the room and the quarrel was renewed. Crotty was standing at the window when Mears stepped up behind him and began shooting with a revolver. He fired twice, both bullets entering Crotty's back. Mrs. Crotty attempted to disarm her father, but he brushed her aside and sent a bullet into his own brain. Crotty will probably die.

CORPORATIONS FEAR NO TAX

Bigelow Machine Pledged to Repeal the Franchise Bill.

A VERY LONG DELAY

Ordinance Is Framed to Give Companies Double Chance to Escape Taxation.

STEVENSON AS CAT'S PAW

The Citizens party managers have made an ironclad agreement with the public service corporations that if the Bigelow-Stevenson franchise tax ordinance, now pending in common council, is passed in its present form it will be repealed before May 1, 1904, the time set for it to go into effect, and that no collection of taxes under it shall ever be made.

This agreement is based upon the condition that the Citizens party obtains a majority of both branches of councils at the next February election. On the other hand, if the Citizens party is unsuccessful next February the ordinance will lapse of its own accord within one year, and this time will be spent by the corporations fighting the bill in the courts.

Councilman W. H. Stevenson is being used by the Citizens party managers as the cat's paw to draw their chestnuts out of the fire. Mr. Stevenson is regarded as a sincere advocate of franchise taxation, but has proved an easy victim of designing politicians.

Instead of becoming operative at once or within 30 days after its passage, the ordinance, as it stands now, does not go into effect until May 1, 1904, over seven months from the present time. The seven months' provision is the vital point in the bill whereby the corporations see their chance to escape taxation.

Double Chance to Escape.

By the terms of the new franchise ordinance the corporations are given a double chance to escape taxation. If the Citizens party wins next February, a 30-days' notice will be served immediately after the election upon councils that if the franchise tax is collected the corporations in turn will raise their rates to customers.

Street car fares will be raised from 5 to 6 cents, and the consumers will have to pay more for artificial and natural gas and electric lights. The Citizens party councils will then take their cue from this threat and immediately repeal the ordinance before the first collection of taxes is made, using the argument that the city is at the mercy of the monopoly.

There is the strongest evidence of a deal between the Bigelow machine and the corporations. The statement is made by members of the select council combine that they are pledged to aid in the scheme.

Select Councilman Samuel J. Wainwright, Jr., stated at the meeting of the joint finance committee Friday that if the corporations were taxed they would retaliate by forcing up their rates to patrons. He said the people would have to pay more for gas, electric light, and even for street car fares. It was agreed at the committee meeting that there was no legislation that could stop the corporations from demanding higher rates from the people.

Councilman Jacob Soffel, Jr., a Bigelow member, also let the cat out of the bag when he stated that if it was found that the "masses were going to get the worst of it the masses would be taken care of."

Lapses After One Year.

The one-year clause in the ordinance gives the corporations another chance to escape, even if the Citizens party loses in the councilmanic election next February. Even should the ordinance be enforced the corporations would not be compelled to pay more than one year, as the ordinance lapses at the end of that period.

If an attempt is made to enforce the law the corporations will go into court and the ordinance will have lapsed by the time the courts hand down their decision.

To the sincere advocate of a franchise tax there appears no good reason why the ordinance should not take effect before the first of next May. When the original franchise ordinance came up in select council, President Lambie made the motion that it should take effect 30 days after its passage, and this amendment was adopted.

A similar amendment may be offered to the new ordinance tonight in common council. The Republicans will support the new ordinance, but will insist that the ordinance shall be made perpetual and that it take effect at the earliest possible moment, instead of delaying it for eight months.

It is pointed out that if the one-year section is adopted the corporations will be a large factor in every municipal election, much more than they are now, for they would be anxious to secure the election of council bodies that would refrain from passing an ordinance taxing their franchises every year. The corporations could afford to spend money liberally to save themselves from a tax amounting to over $500,000 a year.

Republicans Favor a Tax.

The Republican members of common council will tonight vote for a suspension of the rules that the ordinance may be put on second reading, and they will seek to amend the ordinance on second reading.

The agreement between the corporations and the Citizens party managers also provides that none of the electric light franchises now pending in select council shall be passed. This will give the Philadelphia Company a continued monopoly of the electric light business for an indefinite period, and will shut out all competition for the city electric light contract next March, when the present four-year contract expires. The city contract amounts to $300,000 annually.

ALL VILLAGES WILL BE RAZED

Revolutionaries in Macedonia Await Word from Vienna.

READY FOR THE FRAY

If Czar and Emperor Afford No Relief Blood Will Drench the Soil.

THE SULTAN MAKES PROMISES

London, Sept. 20.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Sofia telegraphs: "One of the revolutionary chiefs has informed me that the revolutionists are massing thousands of men at various points on the frontier and their laboratories are working incessantly to replenish their stock of bombs and explosives.

"They do not count much on war between Turkey and Bulgaria, but on the day they hear that the meeting between the czar and Emperor Francis Joseph has not had the desired result for Macedonia, the world will witness the beginning of massacres, burnings and destruction compared with which the Turkish atrocities will seem child's play. The banner of revolution, my informant says, will be unfurled in all the border districts. Every city and village will be destroyed, and such a state of anarchy will be caused that the Turks will step out voluntarily and leave the country to the Macedonian survivors. We have selected the frontier districts for the final operations so that Europe may hear the despairing cries of the dying nation which the Turks will settle.

Note Not an Ultimatum.

SOFIA, BULGARIA, Sept. 20.—Some apprehension having apparently been created owing to the misunderstanding in regard to the precise meaning of Bulgaria's last note to the powers, explanations have been given to some diplomatic agents here that the memorandum was not intended as an ultimatum, but was rather in the nature of an appeal for the intervention of the great powers before that intervention should be too late. The Bulgarian ministry, it was stated, was determined to maintain its attitude of neutrality up to the last moment, but it feels the impossibility of standing by indefinitely while the Turks exterminated the Bulgarian element in Macedonia.

The government's position is rendered increasingly difficult by the attitude of the Macedonian population in Bulgaria, which, vigorously backed up by the revolutionary committees, is persistently endeavoring to force the government's hand and provoke hostilities with Turkey.

A special dispatch from the monastery of Rila, Bulgaria, says the condition of the Turkish garrison of Melnik, 25 miles northeast of Salonica, is believed to be critical. It is besieged by bands of insurgents under the leadership of Yankoff, Stoyanoff, Davyinchoff and Zagrastoff, all of whom were formerly Bulgarian officers.

Tranquility in Razalog.

The insurgents number 1,500, while the garrison is believed to consist of only one battalion. Melnik is a very important point in the mountains commanding the road between Demirhissar and Nasliec. The Turks have withdrawn nearly all of their forces from the districts of Damoumaia and Razlog to send them to the relief of Melnik. As a consequence unusual tranquility prevails throughout the district of Razlog, where the authorities, lacking the support of the troops, have ceased their policy of persecution and the beys are even furnishing bands with food. The Turkish population is described as being in a state of great consternation.

The united bands of Monasseff and Michailof have had an encounter with the troops near Demir-Kapu, 62 miles southwest of Salonica. The Turks had many killed, including two officers.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 20.—In an audience with M. Zinovieff, the Russian ambassador, Friday the sultan expressed his regret at the excesses committed by the Turkish troops in the villages of Monastir and Adrianople. He said that orders had been sent to the authorities concerned to prevent their repetition and he gave the Russian ambassador to understand that the guilty parties would be punished.

Interview With Sultan.

The German ambassador, Baron Marschall von Bieberstein, also had an audience with the sultan, who showed himself most optimistic. The latter declared that the insurrection was drawing to a close. In fact, it had already been suppressed in some districts and the porte would, therefore, immediately issue proclamations announcing the resumption of the application of the reform scheme.

After the granting of these audiences an extraordinary council of ministers was held at Yildiz Kiosk, and the deliberations were continued on Saturday. It is understood that the council drew up fresh instructions to the vali in the sense of his majesty's declaration.

Official dispatches from the valis of Salonica, Monastir and Adrianople report that numerous encounters resulted in favor of the Turks.

BATTLESHIP INDIANA BREAKS TARGET RECORD

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—(Special.)—Again the record for battery practice with great guns has been broken by the battleship Indiana. Today the Indiana came in and on board were made many exultant claims that the old veteran of the war had eclipsed even the record made by the straight shooting gunners of the Alabama. Officers related how this ship had established a new record for guns of the 8-inch type; how one seaman, Treanor, a gun pointer of one of the 8-inch guns, had made four straight hits in two minutes and 16 seconds.

CANADA GRIEVED OVER THE TARIFF

Premier Laurier Says United States Pursues Unfriendly Policy.

RELIEF IS COMING SHORTLY

He Says England Will Establish Protective Duties Against the United States and That Canada Will Furnish Cereals and Meats to Mother Country.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

OTTAWA, CAN., Sept. 20.—Sir Wilfred Laurier, premier of the Dominion of Canada, is a stanch supporter of Joseph Chamberlain's demand for imperial protection. In an interview he said:

"There is no doubt that a tariff will be established by Great Britain against the United States, and I am not sorry; I will welcome it.

"The time is not far distant when we can furnish Great Britain nearly all the cereals and meat and the animal products she needs. There will undoubtedly be reciprocity between the Dominion and the other British colonies.

"Annexation sentiment in Canada? There is not the least bit of it. Why should there be? The United States has done nothing to cause such a feeling in our breasts—rather the reverse of it. Canadians are standing on their manhood, and yet," continued the premier, "Canada and the United States present to the world such an object lesson in peaceful relations as has never before existed between two countries. For some 3,500 miles their territories abut, yet there are neither fortification nor lake navy between them.

"This is political. Commercially we are at strife. And yet I believe that a great majority of the citizens of the United States will agree with me when I say that your statesmen are responsible for the commercial conflicts that exist between the two countries—that they have been exceedingly short-sighted and that their policy has been small.

"The United States, because of her methods, has forced Canada to establish flouring mills, harvester machine works and to begin the installation of meat packing houses. Many American citizens are bringing their capital over here and building factories—capital which a more thoughtful line of action would have kept at home.

"In attempting to protect her coal interests especially the United States has discriminated against her own people in the New England states and on the Pacific slope. The people in Ontario and other central Canadian provinces have been and are suffering along with the Americans. Our coal is all on either the Atlantic or the Pacific coast; there is no coal in Canada in the long stretch between Nova Scotia and British Columbia. In the United States, New England and the Pacific coast states have no coal, although it is distributed pretty well across the union, except at your extreme east and far west. Your coal is in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Illinois, Kansas, Colorado and Wyoming. Ontario and other middle Canadian provinces cannot use coal from Nova Scotia because of the prohibitive transportation rates over the long haul. Not a ton goes into Ontario that is not from the United States.

"Free coal in both countries, as between themselves, would give the people of New England and your Pacific coast states cheap coal. It would also make it cheaper to our people in Ontario.

"Take fruit as another example," he continued. "Naturally the United States grows much fruit that our climate will not produce. Your fruit begins to ripen in June, and Canada would be a large customer were it not for the tariff we are forced to place upon certain kinds of fruit because you have placed a tariff on our apples and the few other kinds of fruit that we grow."

DR. JACKSON DINED.

Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria Honors the American Minister.

SOFIA, BULGARIA, Sept. 20.—Prince Ferdinand last evening gave a dinner party at the palace in honor of J. B. Jackson, who this afternoon, had presented his credentials as the first American diplomatic agent to Bulgaria. The guests included E. F. Elliot, the British diplomatic agent, and the Bulgarian ministers and high officials.

Prince Ferdinand proposed the health of President Roosevelt, speaking in English, and the court band played a selection of American airs.

Great satisfaction is expressed, not not only in official, but also commercial circles, at America's action in establishing diplomatic relations with Bulgaria. The belief prevails that a great opportunity exists for developing a profitable export and import trade with the United States.

HUSBAND'S SAD MISTAKE.

Zanesville Man Shot His Wife Thinking She Was a Burglar.

ZANESVILLE, O., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—Charles Lee shot his wife shortly after midnight under the impression that she was a burglar. Mrs. Lee was awakened by noises that resembled an attempt to pick a lock on the front door, and she went to her husband's bedside and awakened him. In his drowsy condition he grasped a heavy 38-caliber revolver and pulled the trigger.

The bullet struck Mrs. Lee in the abdomen and passed through her body, going on through the window. The physicians are apprehensive about the result.

At the morning service an address was made by the Rev. J. W. Pofinberger of Vandergrift. In the afternoon "Greeting Service" was held and short addresses made by members of the congregation and visiting friends. At the evening services the Rev. J. W. Pofinberger delivered the sermon.

Freight Wreck at Beaver Falls.

BEAVER FALLS, PA., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—A freight wreck in which no one was injured occurred on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie railroad, at 3 o'clock this afternoon, a short distance north of Beaver Falls. POSSIBILITY OF DEADLOCK IN OHIO CONGRESS FIGHT

Hot Contest Now in Progress for the Seat in Sixteenth District Recently Vacated by J. J. Gill.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

STEUBENVILLE, O., Sept. 20.—The Republican congressional convention for the Sixteenth district, which meets here Tuesday to nominate a successor to Congressman J. J. Gill, who resigned, promises to be interesting and may be deadlocked for several days. The main contest will be between the Hon. D. A. Hollingsworth and C. L. Weems. An interesting feature of the convention is that the Mallory-Mooney faction will be on hand to claim seats in the convention, although not recognized by the state convention or congressional call.

The counties will have these delegates in the convention: Belmont, 55 delegates; Jefferson 42, Harrison 23, Carroll 22, Monroe 16; a total of 158. Eighty delegates are necessary to nominate. The primaries were held on September 16, with the following result: D. A. Hollingsworth of Cadiz 47, C. L. Weems got 51, all in Belmont; I. H. Blythe 22, in Carroll, and J. Dunbar 24, in Jefferson. The Monroe delegation of 16 delegates is uninstructed.

Some of the party leaders are here tonight planning out the work of the convention for their respective candidates. The Dunbar managers claim six of the Carroll delegation will be loyal to Blythe. The Dunbar-Weems people are still planning the unslating of the Boose delegation from Monroe.

WALL STREET ENEMIES CONSPIRE AGAINST PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

will have confidence. Looking toward this feature of the conspiracy there will be a conference in New York city on October 12 of men from various parts of the country to consider General Miles as a candidate on the Democratic ticket. If he is considered available and if there seems to be a chance of nominating him his name will be brought to the front.

But it is likely that President Roosevelt's friends will soon take some action to counteract the effects of this movement, although up to date they have not placed much importance upon it.

Col. Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor, who would naturally be supposed to keep close tab on matters of this kind in which his chief is so vitally interested, when asked his opinion as to the extent of the movement, said:

"I know nothing about it. I see by the papers that the Central Labor Union has passed some resolutions, but have not given them any attention. My business is to deal with facts and not theories."

However, other members of the president's official family are more keenly alive to the situation and will do something to show the public and the members of the labor unions that they are being imposed upon if they allow themselves to be convinced that Roosevelt is not the friend of organized labor.

Mitchell is Non-Committal.

It is possible that the awakening of the labor unions to the fact that an attempt is being made to use them for political purposes may come soon. The executive council of the American Federation of Labor will meet here tomorrow to consider questions that are to be brought before the annual convention that will meet in Boston in November. John Mitchell, president of the miners, is here, and among the others that have arrived are T. H. Flynn and E. T. Maginn of Pittsburgh.

Mr. Mitchell spent the evening in conference with President Gompers at the latter's residence, and would not discuss any matter for publication that might come before the council. And it is a strong probability that the Miller case will be one of the matters to come before the council, coming no doubt, in the form of a proposition to indorse the resolution adopted by the Central Labor union.

Mr. Mitchell will then be in a position where he must take a decided stand. Not only must he be ready to vote on the question in the meeting of the council, but since copies of the resolution have been sent to miners' unions all over the country he will also be called upon to advise them what action they should take on it. Mr. Mitchell feels very friendly toward the president, and he knows probably as well as any other man of the president's warm feeling toward organized labor. Therefore he is expected to take a stand in favor of the president and defend him against the attacks that are being made upon him. It may devolve upon President Mitchell to open the eyes of the radical unionists.

CALL PRESIDENT WRONG.

Chicago Federation of Labor Tells Him He Is Deceived, but Loved for "Impetuosity."

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—(Special.)—As a result of the meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor this afternoon President Roosevelt will get a letter of 9,000 words, in which he is told that his policy on the "open shop" question is wrong. The letter says President Roosevelt is deliciously unaware of the hypocrisy of the world of finance and that he is "honest but uninformed."

It is declared that the shop closed to non-union labor is justified by statute and by moral principle. President Roosevelt is informed he is having the wool pulled over his eyes by a certain selfish clique at Washington and in the same breath that he is actuated by the same impetuosity for which we love you." The letter will be sent to Oyster Bay.

ARMENIANS CRY OUT AGAINST CZAR'S POLICY

Will Try to Get America to Aid in Preventing Russia Seizing Their Churches.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—More than 400 Chicago Armenians today held a mass meeting and discussed ways and means to stop what they deem a confiscation of Armenian church property by Russia.

M. B. Seron of the Armenian National Church in America, presided. The following cable dispatch was sent from the meeting:

"To the Armenian Catholics: Itchmiadzine, Caucasus. Most highly reverend father:

"We, the sons of the Armenian National Church in America, demand from you resistance, even to death, against the unjust confiscation of our church property by the Russian government."

It was decided to make the protest national by sending to the czar of Russia a protest against the alleged confiscation, the protest to be signed by as many Armenians in the United States as possible. A petition signed by the Armenians of Chicago will be sent to the government at Washington, asking the secretary of state to intercede for the church through the channels of diplomacy.

FRAU WAGNER DECLINES KAISER'S INVITATION

BERLIN, Sept. 20.—(Special Cable.)—Though the kaiser has made no secret of his wish to have Mrs. Cosima Wagner, the widow of the great composer, present in this city at the unveiling of the new Wagner monument, and even went so far as to send Countess von Buelow, wife of the chancellor of the empire, to Bayreuth to try to induce her to come, Mrs. Wagner has declared that she will not change her mind, that the kaiser has hurt her feelings so that she will never be able to forget it. The monument will then be unveiled without any member of the Wagner family being present.

Sam Parks in Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, MO., Sept. 20.—Samuel Parks of New York arrived in this city tonight to attend the convention of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, which will meet here tomorrow. His arrival aroused much activity among the delegates already here, which presages a lively fight when the committee on credentials shall report to the convention in the morning.

BOY EXACTS PROMISE FROM ANXIOUS MOTHER

Refuses to Return Home Unless She Signs His Bill of Rights.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 20.—Ezra Miller, a 15-year-old boy living near Goshen, is receiving much attention now because he forced his mother to sign a bill of rights before he agreed to return to his home in Clinton.

His widowed mother belongs to the Amish sect and had reared the lad in the ways of his father, denying him the privilege of reading any book save the Bible. The boy was not permitted to go to school and when he found the time approaching for the district school to reopen and the boys and girls of his acquaintance preparing to enter school the feeling of resentment at his hard fate led him to run away.

He went to Elkhart, where he found employment in a hotel. When his mother located him she tried to force him to return to her, but that failed. He agreed to return if his mother would sign the following: That he should be allowed to attend school three months; that he should be allowed to read good books and newspapers; that he should be allowed to attend Sunday school; that he should be allowed to have 50 cents a month of what he should earn, the balance to go to his mother. Finally his mother consented to sign the agreement and the boy returned home.

Coal Land Dispute Settled.

PUEBLO, COL., Sept. 20.—The coal land contest between the government and the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, which has occupied the attention of the Pueblo land office and the Washington authorities for the last four months, has been settled by compromise. The steel company will pay $20 an acre, the price asked for the coal land, instead of $2.50 paid for timber and stone land claims.

PRISON BOOKS WERE DOCTORED

W. L. Kendig, Former Bookkeeper, Gives Chapter on Penitentiary Scandal.

MUCH GRAFT FOR SOME ONE

The Informer Was a Prisoner and Alleges That Money Was Stolen from Counties—He Tells How the Game Was Worked.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Press Building. PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.

From W. L. Kendig, who was convicted several years ago for complicity in the famous counterfeiting case which involved himself and his partner, Jacobs, as conspirators in having made and used bogus revenue stamps; Arthur Taylor and Baldwin S. Bredell, as makers of plates for the stamps and for imitation currency notes, and Ellery Ingham and Harvey K. Newitt as accomplices, has come a new and hitherto unthought of charge against the much-accused Eastern penitentiary.

Kendig is now in one of the government penitentiaries in Georgia, the one at Atlanta where he, with Taylor and Bredell, were transferred after serving part of his term here. Secret service men are known to have seen him within the past few days, and their colleagues in the north have told the proper authorities of his revelations. And so another chapter of scandal has been opened.

A double graft—the kind known to the stock market as a "whipsaw" and to the sporting world as "coming and going"—is what Kendig has told of, and, according to the story credited to him, the game was one of the simplest and cleverest possible. The following facts will illustrate how it is said to have been operated.

When a prisoner in the Eastern penitentiary is marked on its time books—ledgers corresponding to those of any manufacturing concern—as idle, the county from which he was sent was charged by the prison 20 cents a day for his maintenance. To offset this, when the prisoner is working and earning something in the prison shops, half of what he earns goes to his county, he himself being paid the other half upon his release. Some prisoners, it is said, earn as much as 35 cents a day.

Kendig has charged that while he was in the Eastern penitentiary, keeping the time books, many prisoners were reported to the counties from which they came as "idle," whereas, in truth, they were working all the time. That means, if the charge is true, that one way—"coming," as the phrase goes—the county lost 20 cents a day, which it paid for a prisoner's keep; and the other way—"going," to continue the colloquialism—it lost 15 cents, or half of his earnings, for the prison, having reported him "idle," could not, of course, pay the county anything for an idle man's time.

If 100 prisoners were thus marked on the books and 35 cents a day was made from each, the neat little daily sum of $35 would be the "take-off" by somebody. Who, it could not be learned. Nor could it be found out how many prisoners were scheduled as "idle" on the books.

It is certain, however, that the commissioners of several counties in the eastern part of this state are preparing to make investigations. The matter is one which the secret service has not anything to do with beyond communicating with Kendig.

The secret service, it is understood, has its evidence complete now, and that tomorrow the necessary arrests of principals and confederates will be made. None of the prison inspectors would discuss this new charge today.

CHESTER D. POTTER.

TEST COMES TODAY.

Bridgeworkers' Convention Will Decide Between Parks and Buchanan.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 20.—(Special.)—Both the Buchanan and Parks factions in the bridgemen's convention which meets here tomorrow gave out statements that it is a peaceable meeting. The Buchanan faction claims that the suspended union of New York city will not be reinstated unless the delegates from New York agree to reorganize the union first, with all present officers resigning and agreeing not to accept office in the reorganized union and then make agreements with the contractors of New York on lines satisfactory to all parties.

The Parks faction will not permit President Buchanan to call the preliminary meeting tomorrow or to preside. Their plan is that when the time arrives for opening the convention First Vice President Butler of Buffalo is to call the convention to order and preside during the interim in which a president is elected. Before this step is taken President Buchanan may be given an opportunity to resign.

MILLIONS FOR CHARITY.

Contributions and Bequests by Jews Amount to $2,500,000 in a Single Year.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—(Special.)—Donations and bequests aggregating $2,500,000 for charitable and educational purposes were made by Jews in the United States during the twelve months ending August 15. Elias Jacob of Tulare county, California, gave the largest sum—$915,000, a trust fund for the benefit of university graduates who shall select 20 acres of Mr. Jacob's Tulare county property and there form a settlement.

Congressman R. Guggenheim gave $50,000 to the Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids. Children of Leonard Lewisohn gave $50,000 to the Hebrew Sheltering Guardian society, with a promise of $75,000 conditionally. Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Loeser of Brooklyn gave $10,000 to the Brooklyn institute of arts, and Mortimer L. Schiff $25,000 to the Educational alliance. Henry Siegel gave $20,000 to the Stony Wold sanitarium.

WEALTHY NEW YORKERS TO RUN FOR ALDERMEN

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—(Special.)—One of the interesting features of the aldermanic contests this year is the policy of the leaders of the Citizens union to induce prominent merchants and professional men to run for aldermen in as many districts as possible. R. Fulton Cutting already has entered the lists in the Eighteenth district, which is the home of Charles F. Murphy. Capt. Alfred Mahan, a naval historian and expert, and George Haven Putnam, a publisher, are other men of prominence who have consented to run.

The Sunday Gazette Keeps On Adding New features

Women readers of The Sunday Gazette were treated to a surprise yesterday when they opened their morning newspaper and found the Home Journal section, with its 24 bright pages of interesting reading matter. The woman's magazine of The Sunday Gazette henceforth will be printed in tabloid form and will be of uniform size—24 pages. Yesterday's issue contained more reading matter in this one section than could be found in any three weekly publications and twice that to be found in any of the popular monthly periodicals. The character of the matter, too, was far above that of the average Sunday newspaper.

Women readers will like the tabloid form because the pages are of convenient size and can be preserved in binders. The editorial section of The Sunday Gazette yesterday contained the second installment of James Howard Bridge's "History of the Carnegie Steel Company," a series of articles which is being read with the keenest interest by 1,000,000 people. Mr. Bridge gets behind the scenes and reveals facts which are astounding to the majority of his readers. The opening chapters exhausted two editions of The Gazette, and only those who apply early will be able to be supplied this week.

In addition to these tabloid sections, which contain a wealth of interesting matter, including the literary and theatrical reviews attractively set forth, were four news sections and six pages of comics, with four pages of colored illustrations.

Among the special features were contributions from John Kendrick Bangs, Kate Thyson Marr, W. T. Stead, Erasmus Wilson and a score of others, as well as columns of spicy correspondence from the European centers. Yesterday's Gazette lacked nothing that goes toward making a good magazine.

OLD GLORY WITH IRELAND'S GREEN

Two National Emblems Used to Drape Hall at Monster Emmet Meeting.

NATION'S WRONGS RECITED

Resolutions Adopted Declaring Only Proper Settlement of Emerald Isle's Differences Is the Abolition of English Rule and Establishment of Republic.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The Academy of Music was filled to overflowing tonight by a meeting held under the auspices of the Clan-Na-Gael, to commemorate the centenary of the martyrdom of Robert Emmet. The auditorium was draped with American and Irish flags and the Irish national spirit found expression in continuous applause as the speakers dwelt upon Ireland's wrongs and the hopes of Ireland's sons. State Senator Victor H. Dowling presided.

Resolutions were passed declaring the only proper settlement of the differences between Ireland and England to be the abolition of English rule in Ireland and pledging the Clan-Na-Gael to work for the establishment of an Irish republic. The orator of the evening was former United States Senator Charles A. Towne of Minnesota. Mr. Towne pictured the scene of Emmet's death, which he declared was one of the most pathetic tragedy's in all the island's history.

After relating to the incident of the executioner lifting Emmet's head and crying out, "This is the head of a traitor," the speaker continued:

"That was 100 years ago, and we reassembled here tonight to do honor to the memory, not of a traitor, but of one whose name is written among the foremost martyrs for the cause of liberty. So long as there is injustice the Irish will resent it. We are here to renew our allegiance to the cause for which Emmet died.

"We are here to reaffirm our fealty to that great principle upon which the American republic was founded, and upon which Emmet wished to found an Irish republic, namely, the natural right of every nation to have the guidance of its own affairs. The right to independence is just as inherent in the nation as the right to life and liberty is to the individual. The highest right in the world is to maintain the nation's liberty, and the obligation to maintain it dwarfs all other duties."

Six thousand persons gathered in Carnegie hall tonight to do honor to the memory of Emmet under the auspices of the United Irish league. Great enthusiasm was displayed throughout the evening.

Among those present were Mendes Capote of the Cuban senate and Gen. W. B. Menicat of the Cuban finance commission. Thomas Estrada Palma, son of the Cuban president, was on the platform with his American wife. Young Palma was introduced and acknowledged it with a brief speech.

The members of the family of Thomas Addis Emmet were also present. The Rev. Charles McCready presided. A cablegram from Dr. Thomas Addis Emmet, dated Warwick, England, was read.

In a speech eulogizing Emmet, Robert Emmet O'Donnell offered the resolutions of the meeting. The resolutions called attention to the land bill victory and thanked the United Irish league for its work in that direction, and pledged the sympathy and active support of American Irish to the fostering of the principles of Robert Emmet and the fruition of his ideals. The vote was taken by rising.

The oration of the evening was made by Col. John F. Finerty of Chicago, American president of the United Irish league. Charles R. Devlin, M. P., representing Galway in place of Col. Lynch, the Irishman sentenced to life imprisonment because he fought with the Boers against England, was the last speaker. Mr. Devlin spoke on contemporary English politics. When he mentioned Joseph Chamberlain's name the audience hissed.

HISSED NON-UNION MEN.

Colorado Cavalry Again Called Out to Disperse the Striking Miners.

VICTOR, COL., Sept. 20.—While a number of non-union men who were brought from Minnesota to take the places of the striking miners, were going to supper tonight, they were surrounded by about 500 strikers, who jeered at them as they walked along the street. A troop of cavalry was ordered to the scene and dispersed the crowd.

Today delegations from the local G. A. R., and Woman's Relief corps visited Camp Goldfield and were entertained by the soldiers.

NEWSPAPER MAN DIES AND WIFE KILLS HERSELF

PARIS, Sept. 20.—James L. Ferriere, a well-known newspaper man of New York, died here today from a paralytic stroke. His wife, in a fit of distraction, took her life. Mr. Ferriere was formerly for several years an editor of the Paris edition of the New York Herald. He entered the service of the Associated Press in 1897 and at the time of his death was thus employed.

Mt. St. Helena Stirred Up.

TACOMA, WASH., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—An earthquake Friday seems to have stirred up volcanic fires in Mt. St. Helena. The shock was so heavy on the summit that a climbing party was thrown to the ground. The ground is so hot it burns the hand and steam rises from many fissures. It is feared an eruption will take place.

SCHWAB TO SPEND MONEY ON SCHOOLS

He Declares His Benefactions Will Take That Channel Hereafter.

HIS PLANS NOT YET MATURED

Hopes That More Attention Will Be Paid to Teaching the Trades at Public Institutions of Learning—Value of Army of Artisans.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—"Whatever money I have to give hereafter will be devoted to the founding of industrial schools. That will be the channel my benefactions will take. The thought and the intent are clearly defined in my mind; but where the schools will be or exactly what will be their scope and character has not been worked out. It is far too early for me to discuss the subject, and I cannot consent to do so," said Charles M. Schwab in an interview at the Hotel Lorraine today.

On Saturday, the day of the dedication at Westberly, Pa., of the public school building which bears his wife's name, which was presented to the town by the former president of the Steel Corporation, Mr. Schwab announced that, following the example of Andrew Carnegie, he would devote his fortune to benevolent purposes. Mr. Schwab is worth in round numbers $20,000,000.

His plans, however, differ from those of Mr. Carnegie. The latter is making public libraries his chief benevolence to the world. Mr. Schwab will spend his millions in the establishment of schools, and a novel turn will be given to his charity by the erection of public school houses wherever urgent need exists for them.

"It is an easy matter," he said, "for the man who has a great deal of money to sign a check for thousands of dollars, but it is something more to devote his time and attention to something that does not promise any remuneration."

Mr. Schwab said it was his hope that the public schools would shortly pay more attention to the various trades, since it is in this manner that they may add to the country's army of intelligent and energetic artisans.

GREEKS MEET IN BOSTON AND ENTER PROTEST

Opposed to the Bulgarians Entering Macedonia and Causing Slaughter.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

BOSTON, MASS., Sept. 20.—A meeting of the Greks of Boston in Steinert hall today made strong protests against the Bulgarian incursions to Macedonia. The Bulgarians were charged by the speakers with stirring up insurrection and thereby causing the slaughter of Greeks in order that ultimately Bulgarian might annex Macedonia. A contribution of nearly $1,000 was raised to assist the persecuted Greeks in Macedonia.

The speakers were Michael Aragnos, director of the Perkins institution for the blind; Theodore Ion, professor of international law at Boston university law school; Mr. Rodabanakis, ex-consul of Greece, and T. T. Timayenis, brother of the Greek consul.

Resolutions of sympathy with Macedonian Greeks and of protest against Turkish outrages were adopted.

CORBIN VISITING.

Is the Guest of Senator Kearns While Investigating Improvements.

SALT LAKE, Sept. 20.—Maj. Gen. Henry C. Corbin, United States army, arrived in this city today, and during his stay will be the guest of Senator Kearns. Gen. Corbin's visit is for the purpose of investigating conditions at Fort Douglass, where improvements involving an expenditure of nearly $1,000,000 are now under way.

The length of the general's stay here is uncertain on account of the illness of his son, Richard, who came west with the party of Washington correspondents and while here was stricken with malarial fever. Before returning east Gen. Corbin will inspect several Montana posts and the garrisons in the Puget sound country.

GRANTED A DIVORCE.

Washington Lawyer Got Legal Separation from Wife Who Eloped.

WASHINGTON, PA., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—The Washington county court has handed down a decree granting an absolute divorce to Otto W. Atkins of this city from his wife, Minerva E. Atkins. Mrs. Atkins, who is a member of a prominent family, and Samuel C. Clarke, a well-known attorney, eloped on October 18 last.

The affair created a great sensation at the time, both parties being prominently connected and each leaving a family in Washington. The woman's husband began divorce proceedings almost immediately after the elopement, and the divorce decree resulted.

SOCIALISTS ARE NOT HARMONIOUS

Great German Political Party Shows Signs of Coming Disintegration.

LEADERS TOO AUTOCRATIC

New Aristocracy Within the Ranks Has Been Formed by the Strong Laborers and Their Leaders Chafe Under Discipline Imposed by New Power.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

DRESDEN, Sept. 20.—The debates of the Socialistic convention are followed with great interest by the whole German people. It is acknowledged that to the Conservative party they are of exceedingly great interest. The indications are that the Socialist party is divided into factions and may fall to pieces. The larger the Socialist party becomes the more it spreads out and the wider the breach between the different opinions represented within it will grow. The masses of the party are inclined to join the more intellectual leaders of the party, who join the ranks of the Socialists from the camp of the bourgeoisie and to whom the party really owes its enormous growth during the last year. These so-called intellectual leaders are, however, regarded as much more dangerous to existing society than real labor leaders with their wild but altogether harmless speeches.

The animated debates in the convention show that a new aristocracy has been formed within the ranks of the Socialists and that the laborers and their leaders are chafing under the strict discipline imposed by this new power. Even men who in many points sympathize with the Socialists declare that the present convention marks the turning point in the history of German social democracy and that the party will fall entirely to pieces if it conducts its policies on lines very much different from those followed heretofore.

COUNTESS SEES LIFE IN NEW YORK SLUMS

Wife of Gen. Von Waldersee Visits Missions in Lower Part of the City.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Two distinguished and wealthy visitors made a tour of the slums tonight. They were the Countess von Waldersee and her sister, the Baroness de Waechter-Lauterbach, who were called here from their home in Germany three weeks ago on account of the death of their brother, David B. Lee, at Dr. John B. Walker's sanitarium in East Thirty-third street. They were accompanied on their trip by Mr. and Mrs. Radcliffe.

Their route led them along the various missions of the lower part of the city and this added to the event because of the well-founded rumor that the sisters are planning to make a liberal endowment to some Christian institution before returning to Germany.

In several places visited interesting incidents occurred, particularly in the old mission in Water street, where one reformed convict prayed earnestly that the millionaires might be sent there, so that they might learn where to place their money so that it would benefit struggling souls. It was midnight when the trip was finished.

HUNTING EATON'S BODY, BELIEVING HIM KILLED

Chicago Police and Detectives Think They Have Murder Mystery.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—An all day and night search of barns, empty houses and every conceivable place of concealment by a squad of detectives and ceaseless cross questioning of Albert Schoup marked the work of the police today in their search for Arthur Eaton. They expect to find either the boy or his lifeless body tomorrow.

Albert Schoup was arrested at the home of his father. He is an ex-convict. Already he has told the police a multitude of stories regarding his whereabouts since Wednesday noon, when Arthur Eaton was dragged from the play ground at the Skinner school.

The two boys who were with Arthur have identified Schoup as the man who stole their playmate. It appears that Schoup accuses Arthur Eaton of stealing $5 from his sister-in-law while paying at her house and it now develops that it was Schoup's money and while denying all knowledge of the kidnaping the police believe that he is guilty of possible murder and the missing $5 prompted him to commit the crime.

STATE WILL APPEAL.

Minnesota to Take Another Step in Northern Securities Case.

ST. PAUL, MINN., Sept. 20.—Notice of appeal in the case of the state against the Northern Securities Company will probably be filed this week. The final decree of the United States district court, holding that the company is not an unlawful combination, was made a few days ago.

The opinion of the attorneys for the state is that the case involves both the United States constitution and acts of congress. The Sherman anti-trust law, for instance. The constitution of Minnesota and laws enacted thereunder prohibits combinations in restraint of trade according to the argument of the state, and the state constitution receives is force and effect through the federal constitution. The state maintains that the company was organized under the laws of New Jersey for the purpose of doing that which is prohibited by Minnesota laws, and the every other statesdriu anrdi shrdlu luu United States constitution provides that each state shall give "full faith and credit to the public acts, records and judicial proceedings of every other state."

Mrs. Alice Mardorff, Despondent Over Being Deserted, Took Her Life.

ANNIVERSARY OF WEDDING

Woman Bought Carbolic Acid and Laudanum, but Finally Decided That the Rope Was the Best Thing to Use to Commit Suicide.

Despondent because her husband deserted her, Mrs. Alice Mardorff, 28 years old, committed suicide on the anniversary of her wedding by hanging herself in her room at No. 5334 Second avenue shortly after 7 o'clock last night. She was married nine years ago. Her husband left her in June and she never heard of him afterward.

The woman evidently pondered over the easiest means of ending her life. In her room were found a bottle of carbolic acid and one filled with laudanum. She bought them in the afternoon after talking with her sister, Mrs. Daniel F. Imlar, of No. 2180 Second avenue.

"It is better to be dead than live this way," she said to her sister. She asked Mrs. Imlar what she thought was the easiest means to end her life. The sister paid no attention to the question, and told Mrs. Mardorff not to talk that way. The woman left the house, and after buying the poisons went to her home.

Without saying anything to anyone she proceeded to her room. There was a door into the adjoining chamber, and a swing had been hung there for the benefit of a little niece. Mrs. Mardorff cut the rope and, wrapping it twice about her neck, drew her knees from under her and strangled to death.

Archie Downey, a boarder, in passing the room, rapped on the door for the woman to go to supper. Getting no response, he looked through the transom and saw Mrs. Mardorff's body hanging in the doorway. He broke into the room, cut the body down and summoned a physician.

The latter on arrival said the suicide had expired 10 minutes previously. The coroner was notified, and the body was taken to the morgue. It is not known where the husband is, but Mrs. Mardorff's relatives are of the opinion he is somewhere in the west.

EXONERATED HUSBAND BEFORE SHE EXPIRED

Bridget Walsh Died of Blood Poiso, Not Abuse—Three Heart Failure Victims.

Coroner Jesse M. McGeary yesterday made an investigation into the death of Bridget Walsh, of the rear of No. 32 Blaine street, who died Saturday afternoon. The post-mortem examination showed death was due to blood poison. Stories that she and her husband had quarreled and that last week the latter kicked and assaulted her were denied by the woman before she expired.

Mamie Black, colored, dropped dead from heart disease last night in front of No. 716 Wylie avenue. She was talking to George Williams at No. 29 Shore alley when she collapsed. She was 19 years old and lived at No. 1228 Poplar alley. Dr. S. C. Bowers was summoned and said death was due to heart trouble.

Robert W. Springer of Glenshaw died suddenly at his home last evening of heart disease. For some time he has had pneumonia, and this, with the heart disease, caused death. He was 55 years old and married.

Thomas A. Coleman, Sr., a cooper, 60 years old, was found dead in bed yesterday morning at his home, No. 4921 Fairfield street. Heart failure was the cause.

George W. Aiken of Cincinnati, an uncle of William Fisher, the traveling salesman who dropped dead at the Seventh avenue hotel Saturday morning, came here yesterday and took charge of the body. Mr. Aiken said Mr. Fisher was a widower, aged 34 years, and lived at No. 1018 Foraker street, Cincinnati; that he had been operated upon for appendicitis, and that he often complained of his heart hurting him. He traveled for D. C. Baldwin & Company, piano and organ dealers of Cincinnati, and was highly thought of by the firm and all who knew him.

Miss Gertrude Nana of No. 1133 Rush street, Allegheny, called at the morgue yesterday and identified the body as that of a close friend of hers. She said she saw him at 7 p. m. Wednesday and that he appeared well and in good spirits. Mr. Aiken shipped the body to Cincinnati at 8 o'clock last night.

Brought Back to Face Murder Charge.

County Detectives Robert McMillin and J. W. Reed arrived in this city last night from Flemington, W. Va., with William Bolden, the negro, who is supposed to have shot and killed John Markoff on June 15, 1902, at Borland, for which "Buck" Sanders was convicted and sentenced to be executed on November 10. Bolden refused to talk about the shooting. Bolden has been indicted by the grand jury for the murder and will be tried this term of court.

Headquarters will be established at the Monongahela House.

TUBE WORKERS ORGANIZE.

All Plants Making Brass and Copper Tubes Are Unionized.

Henry Sable, president of the International Association of Tube Workers, was in the city yesterday in the interest of his organization. He visited Pride of the Valley lodge at Wilson.

William J. Cunningham of Waterbury, Conn., sent a telegram to J. B. McDonnough, the general secretary, who is in Pittsburgh on a business trip, that he had formed a local at Waterbury. There are only three brass and copper tube plants in the country, and perfecting this local brings all the workmen into the organization.

Italian Suspected of Stabbing.

Ferdinando Fouco was arrested last night at his home, in the rear of No. 545 Sixth avenue, on suspicion of being the man who stabbed Gaetano Scarsi at Fifth avenue and Tunnel street on Saturday night. He is 47 years old and is the porter at the saloon of D. C. Neary, where the police say the trouble began.

ROBINSON RAIDS CAMPS ALONG OHIO

County Detectives Arrest 12 Men Charged With Selling Liquor Illegally and on Sunday.

BARROOM ON A BOATHOUSE

Had All the Necessary Fixtures, Including a Cash Register—$400 in Dimes and Nickels Found—Poker Playing in a Tent.

County Detective Robert G. Robinson yesterday had a number of alleged river speakeasies raided. As a result 12 men are in jail charged with selling liquor illegally and on Sunday, and one with running a gambling game.

Most of the men were arrested in the camps along the Ohio river opposite Sewickley. Of late numerous complaints have reached the district attorney about the quantity of liquor which is sold at these places. Some of the dispensers of liquid refreshments have boat houses. One floating bar room was found yesterday containing all the necessary fixtures, including a cash register.

While Detective Jerry Lutz and a force of 10 men were operating in the lower river country, Detective Robinson was up the Allegheny looking for gamblers. He found one party of crap shooters. The players escaped, leaving behind them their "bones." It was evident that the game was on the "square," as the dice were made of glass and it would have been impossible to load them. Robinson says that all the county speakeasies will be closed, and next Sunday all camps will be raided.

Detectives were sent to the Ohio river camps last Sunday and sufficient evidence was secured to warrant the raid of yesterday. The places opposite Sewickley were doing a big business yesterday when the officers arrived. In one camp there were at least 50 visitors, who tried to escape. The detectives fired revolvers in the air and the patrons stopped running. The homes and addresses of most of them were secured.

These prisoners were brought to jail last night and are charged with illegal liquor selling: Fritz Sorg, John Ryan, Fred Ulig, Charles Hoffman, James Warden, John Parker, John Noblok, Timothy Murray, Fred Smith, Anderson Robb, M. T. Walters and J. K. Kyle. The detectives say that they have evidence against all of the prisoners. Over $400 in dimes and nickles were gotten off of two or three of the men.

Nick Long is charged with running a gambling game. Detective Robinson says that Long was conducting a big poker game in a tent, when arrested.

POLICE RAID HOUSES.

Proprietress of a Soho Resort Is Given a Heavy Sentence.

Mrs. Sadie Baxter of No. 2530 Fifth avenue was sent to the workhouse for six months in default of a fine of $100 and costs by Magistrate E. P. Negley at Oakland police station yesterday morning. Mrs. Baxter's house was raided by Inspector Milton Bailey early in the morning and the woman and 12 visitors arrested. The police claim the house is a resort for young boys and girls and is one of the most disreputable houses in the Soho district. The visitors paid $1 and costs each.

The alleged disorderly house of Madge Mosby, colored, No. 45 Shingiss street, was raided yesterday morning and the proprietress, with four men and three women were locked up. The charges against the women are selling liquor illegally and keeping a disorderly house. Earlier in the day Clara Jones, colored, of No. 1319 Franklin street; Osborne Hinton, colored, of No. 3 Scott street, and Alice Winslow of No. 55 Fulton street, were arrested. The last three were charged with illegal liquor selling.

The South Side police raided the alleged disorderly house of Mrs. Mary Mullen at No. 525 Carson street yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Mullen and seven visitors were arrested.

MANY YEARS A PRIEST.

Rev. Father Hickey Celebrates Forty-Six Years of Service for Church.

The Very Reverend Father John Hickey, rector of St. Thomas' Roman Catholic church of Braddock, yesterday celebrated the 46th anniversary of his entrance into the priesthood. A number of priests called during the day to extend congratulations. Father Hickey is 69 years of age. He was ordained as a priest in the St. Paul's cathedral in Pittsburgh in 1858, and was rector of the cathedral from 1863 until 1877.

While rector of St. Paul's he completed the cathedral and built the episcopal residence connected with it. He also established several new parishes and built an orphan asylum. He became rector of the St. Thomas' church at Braddock in 1882. His administration there has been equally successful. Charles M. Schwab is erecting a $120,000 edifice for the congregation which will be dedicated in the second week of October.

BATTLE WITH HIGHWAYMEN.

Intended Victim Put Up a Good Fight and His Assailants Were Arrested.

Three alleged Slavish highwaymen came to grief on the South Side last evening, when they attempted to hold up and rob one of their fellow countrymen.

George Winawich of No. 30 South Thirtieth street was walking along South Thirty-third street when three men sprang at him and demanded his money. Winawich is a large man and he at once began fighting. Seizing an iron bar, which lay on the street, he struck at the men and hit Sam Steronowich of No. 15 South Thirtieth street over the head. The other two men ran away.

Officer Charles Schierlien was near by and placed both men under arrest, charged with being suspicious persons. Stevonowich had a large scalp wound which was dressed at the station house.

SEEK TREATMENT FOR DRUG HABIT

Handsome Couple Apply to Bellevue Hospital as a Last Resort.

WERE VICTIMS OF MORPHINE

Girl Explains That They Are Engaged to Be Married and Persuades Her Companion to Submit Himself to the Care of the Doctors.

[By Private Wire To The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Bellevue hospital, which catches much of the curious flotsam and jetsam in the city, has rarely harbored a couple who interested the attendants more than the handsome young woman and the stalwart physician who walked in today and asked to be treated for over-indulgence in drugs. The woman gave her name as Miss Dora F. Lessel, 25 years old. She said she was a typewriter. Her companion was Dr. A. L. Lewis, 29 years old. He was pale and nervous, though he was a man of large physique.

When Dr. Vose of the house staff was summoned the man said: "Doctor, this young woman has been taking a great deal of morphine, and I want you to care for her. She is becoming a wreck, and I fear for her life."

The young woman leaned against the railing in the room, and turning her large, dark, lack-luster eyes at her companion, said in a weak voice:

"Are you not going to keep your promise, Doc? You know you agreed to come with me, and you are just as badly off as I am.

"You see, doctor," she continued, her eyes filling with tears, "we are going—I mean we are engaged, and he promised me solemnly that he would come here with me. I cannot leave him, and he must help me to do better. Don't you see, if we are both cured we will go away so much happier," and staggering into a chair she cried softly.

Dr. Lewis bit his lip and tried to comfort her. Then he said: "The little girl is right. I did tell her I would stay here, and I guess I need treatment as much as she does. Will you keep us both?"

Dr. Vose said: "Probably you both have done the best thing."

The girl's eyes brightened and she placed her arm affectionately on Dr. Lewis.

"You are a good old friend, Doc," she said, "I felt sure you would stand by me. You have helped me, but you have become a victim, too."

Smiling through her tears she was led away to the women's ward. The doctor was taken in the other direction. Dr. Vose diagnosed both cases as "morphinism."

At the addresses given by the two it was said tonight that they are not known.

FRANK A. PARKER.

Raided Alleged Speakeasy.

The house of Frank Brenneg in Fifth avenue, near the car barn, McKeesport, was raided yesterday afternoon and the alleged proprietor and five visitors arrested. One-half dozen cases of whisky and as many of beer were taken along to police headquarters as evidence that the place was a speakeasy.

CHILD TRAIN ROBBERS.

Sheraden Families Accumulate a Large Amount of Food.

Eighteen children, involving as many Sheraden families, were each fined $10 and costs by Alderman King of the South Side, Saturday evening, charged with stealing from railroad cars. The Anti-Cruelty society was the prosecutor.

Early last week a train of produce cars arrived at the Panhandle freight yards at Shereden. Two of them were forcibly opened and the following goods taken: Eggs, 90 dozen; butter, 80 pounds; flour, 50 sacks of 25 pounds each. Most of the goods were found in and about the premises of the families of the children prosecuted.

All of the fines were not paid, but in each instant the parents made promises to make payment.

Threw Shoeblack Through the Window.

Ernest Conte refused to pay for a shine at No. 516 Wylie avenue and knocked the shoeblack through a window when pay was demanded. He was fined $5 and costs yesterday.

RUNAWAY IN PARK.

Auto Frightens Horse and a Sharpsburg Doctor Is Badly Hurt.

An automobile caused a runaway in Highland park last evening at 6:30 o'clock in which Dr. J. L. Snyder of No. 226 North Main street, Sharpsburg, was seriously injured. Dr. Snyder was driving near the "zoo" when an automobile passed, frightening his horse. The animal started down the road at a terrific speed, and the driver, in pulling on the reins, lost his balance and fell out of the buggy, alighting on his head.

Dr. Snyder received several bad scalp wounds, was cut about the face and is thought to have received internal injuries. He was carried to a shelter house in the park and a physician summoned, who dressed his wounds. He was later taken home.

The runaway horse was stopped by Sergeant Patrick Noonan of the park police, before the animal had done any further damage.

The New Silks and Velvets.

Our news this afternoon will be in the shape of an invitation to an important event. Consider it as addressed to you personally. Please extend it to your friends, as a favor to us.

In this first Autumn showing of the new Silks and Velvets a marvelous exhibition of the fertility of invention, faultless taste and infinite resource of the French artist-manufacturers is presented today. When in quest of the most perfect Silks, one gravitates naturally to France, for it is at Lyons, the heart and brains of the silk industry, that the most superb specimens are produced.

And, with the tremendous purchasing power of our silk store as a lever, we are able to secure the richest and most beautiful of these Silks and Velvets, as the present collection amply proves.

Each season presents some notable novelty, the results of months of thought and planning on the part of some leading manufacturer—an idea that scintillates with beauty and freshness. As in past seasons, this year's novelties come to us.

Many crepe effects are noted, and other soft clinging materials belonging to the crepe family—a particularly attractive group of crepes in double width.

Among the plain colored Silks, beautiful newcomers, are the soft Messalines—soft, rich, with a mirror-like shimmer that almost suggests a polish, and so pliable that they may be drawn without injury through a finger ring. These are in a full color line, also white and black.

The Black Silks show a superb variety. In addition to the numerous novelty and plain crepes there are many Bengalines, Natte and Satin Meteor weaves.

Velours Chiffon and Velours Curson are prominent among the V and both beautiful and practical in colors and black, $2.25 to $10.00 a yard.

Velour Breitschwantz (broadcloth), a novelty velvet, 32 inches wide—$3.50 a yard.

Voluptueuse Faconne, an elaborately brocaded Crepe Chameuse, double width, in self color designs—$7.50 a yard.

Crepe Etoile—an extremely rich novelty silk, ground of crepe with delicate floral designs in the leading Fall colors. The width is 40 inches—the material admirable for the rich evening gown—$8.00 a yard.

Crepe Marquisette, a thin silky material in all the new evening shades—double width—$2.25 a yard.

Plain Crepes de Chine, both in single and double widths—the very newest colors, from $1.00 a yard up to $5.00.

The lateness of the crop season creates an unusual condition in the money market. Ordinarily by this time the return movement has set in toward the east. Not so this year. The crops are late and that means that the money for moving them will be detained beyond the usual time. That fact ought not to make any great difference in financial conditions, but there is no denying the fact that it is felt in other channels.

The Republican primaries passed off very quietly and there were few contests, as the concentration of party opinion as regards candidates for the leading offices had already designated the nominees. The openness of the primaries to aspirants was, however, shown by the fact that a three-cornered contest took place over the office of jury commissioner, and the convention will pass upon the claims of three candidates for the nomination. They all had the same opportunity to submit their candidacy to the party membership, and the decision of the convention will express a fair party choice.

Lord Roberts is trying his best to frown down the extravagance that besets the British army. He began by advising his officers to live quietly and economically. No attention being paid to his request he has issued a command that unseemly display shall cease. Lord Roberts has enlisted in a good cause, but he will have a hard time to enforce his orders. A majority of officers in the army are the sons of somebody who have taken up the profession of arms in order to shine in society. This they cannot do if their expenditures are limited to the possibilities of officers who have won promotion by sheer merit. But if Lord Roberts can have his way he will drive out some of the drones, and thereby make room for more of the merit men, and that is probably his object. "Bobs" is a soldier, himself, and knows the needs of the service.

Alfred Mosely, who brought to the United States a number of workmen to make a study of American industrial conditions, has come to this country again on another mission of inquiry. He will shortly be followed by a number of English educators, who are to tour the United States, investigating its educational system, particularly the public schools. Mr. Mosely's commission of workmen were not much impressed by what they saw here, except as it related to the business of things and the enterprise of employing capital. Mr. Mosely, however, remains of the opinion that there is something here worth having. He pitches now upon our educational system and he is probably getting on a warm trail. The public school system has much to do with the progress of the United States as a nation. But before that go freedom and social equality.

The Citizens party leaders in their efforts to dicker with the Orphans and at the same time to avoid doing anything to spoil the corporation graft are having a hard time throwing dust in the eyes of the public. The plain way, the simple way, the honest way for councils to proceed is to pass a resolution instructing the city solicitor to report in what way the city can obtain compensation for the use of public property by the corporations and to make the corporation holdings subject to taxation; and to accompany his report with drafts of ordinances embodying his recommendations. Then pass these ordinances without the change of a letter. That would mean business, but this amateur manufacture of ordinances, asking the city solicitor will this do and will that do, means humbug. It is all a matter of campaign pretense and not of genuine purpose to promote public interests.

The evidences of an understanding between Premier Balfour and Mr. Chamberlain are such that London advices say that Mrs. Chamberlain is expected to re-enter the cabinet in case the country returns Mr. Balfour to power. But if Mr. Chamberlain succeeds in building up a protectionist party strong enough to command a majority in parliament it will be a question whether he rather than Mr. Balfour ought not to be the premier of a protectionist ministry. Mr. Balfour and Mr. Chamberlain are evidently in substantial accord in their views, but the former surrenders them in deference to his official responsibilities, while the latter surrenders official responsibilities in order that he can propagate his views without restraint. The present government cannot be expected to hold out much longer now that the cabinet is breaking up over the protection issue, and when the appeal to the country takes place it is unlikely that the new movement will be strong enough to carry a majority of the constituencies. The Liberal party will come into power and both Balfour and Chamberlain will be free of official responsibilities. Their relative ministerial rank in case of a return to power will be determined by their course while in opposition. Until that period arrives the weight of Mr. Balfour as a political factor under the new political conditions cannot be ascertained.

Advices from Sofia report that the Macedonian revolutionists are now concentrating all their operations in Eastern Macedonia, where they are winning victories. Advices from Sofia are quite untrustworthy as to details of any kind, but the general statement as to the transfer of revolutionary activity to Eastern Macedonia is doubtless true, and it means that the revolutionists have been thoroughly whipped out in Western Macedonia, which was the first scene of their active operations. The European powers are still strangely quiescent, although active negotiations are going on among them as regards concerted action, and there are some indications that a plan of joint intervention by Austria and Russia has been adopted. It is quite likely that the powers are treating Bulgaria as they treated Greece when that power was the center of a revolutionary movement some years ago. They held aloof until Greece was thoroughly beaten and then stepped in to settle the situation. It looks as if the intention now was to let the Bulgarian bands be completely thrashed before taking action. The insurrection was gotten up with the avowed intention of forcing European intervention and it would appear that the powers do not intend to be forced. When the Bulgarian bands are eliminated the powers will act. This view of the situation explains the studied indifference with which diplomatic notes and protests from Bulgaria are treated, and also the forbearance of Turkey in refraining from an invasion of Bulgaria, which is the military base of the Macedonian insurrection. The powers are ignoring the one and restraining the other.

The Ohio Campaign.

The Republican campaign in Ohio opened with great enthusiasm at Chillicothe Saturday. Gov. Nash presided and Senators Foraker and Hanna, Col. Myron T. Herrick, candidate for governor, and Warren G. Harding, candidate for lieutenant governor, were among the speakers. The demonstration was in every way satisfactory, as showing that the Republican party organization of Ohio is fully aroused to the importance of the contest and is waging an alert and vigorous campaign.

Ohio is still as of yore the greatest political experiment station in the country. It seems to be almost a rule of our politics that new departures, new ideas, new party formations shall be tested in the crucible of an Ohio campaign. The Tom Johnson movement is essentially an effort to convert the Democratic party into a Socialist organization. Johnson is not himself a believer in free silver, but he has associated himself with Bryanism and free silver so as to get the support of the elements brought together by the free silver mania. He indorsed the Kansas City platform and then repudiated its principles by indorsing a gold Democrat as the party candidate for the United States senate. His consistent purpose in these inconsistencies is to hold together all party elements and convert the party into a Socialist organization. He has been able to retain the support of Bryan, who has always been a Socialist first and free silverite secondarily. With the waning of the silver issue the Socialist principles which lay back of the silver movement with the Populists naturally become prominent, and by its appeal to these the Tom Johnson movement seeks to obtain a fresh basis of fusion.

Thus the Ohio campaign possesses national political significance to an extraordinary degree. The contest for the possession of the Ohio state offices is merely an incident of an enterprise whose main purpose is to institute a new departure in Democratic politics, and commit the party to a Socialist program. The movement antagonizes the reorganizers, whose purpose is to bring the Democratic party back to the moorings from which it was broken by the free silver movement. The result of the Ohio campaign will thus have an important bearing upon the struggle for control of the Democratic party organization. If Tom Johnson should be successful it will greatly strengthen the Socialist wing of the party and might possibly deflect the whole course of national politics to entirely new lines. His defeat will be a triumph for conservative forces in our politics, and all party organizations will feel the effect.

Burying a Dead Issue.

The utter deadness of the silver issue, upon which the last two presidential campaigns were fought, is shown by the complete lack of popular interest in the proceedings of the commission on international exchange. This commission, constituted by the joint action of Mexico and the United States, has been at work in Europe negotiating for the establishment of the gold standard in silver-using countries and also in substituting for the obsolete ratios of 15½ to 1 and 16 to 1, a ratio corresponding with actual relations of value. The new ratio recommended is 32 to 1 and this has actually been adopted for silver coinage in the Philippines. It is part of the plan that this ratio shall be adopted in Mexico, India, China and other silver-using countries. But while this burial of the 16 to 1 fetish is going on even Mr. Bryan appears not to have heard of it, for there has been nothing about it in his paper.

The Sunday Gazette published an interesting letter from Prof. Jeremiah W. Jenks, a member of the commission, explaining the advantages which will accrue from the general adoption of the gold standard and silver coinage at the new ratio. Silver money is to be kept from falling below the legal ratio by coining it on government account and providing for its redemption in gold. This exchange between gold and silver-using countries will be kept stable. This will facilitate commerce by eliminating speculative risks owing to fluctuations in the value of silver, and will also tend to promote investments of capital in silver-using countries. It is because of these considerations that Mexico has taken the leading part in the movement, the appointment of the joint commission having been made at her instance.

The matter may be summed up by saying that the silver question is now out of politics and is being settled in a scientific manner free of disturbance from popular error and prejudice. The opportunity is created by the fact that nobody really cares much about silver any more, popular interest having turned in other directions.

Vicious Features.

It may never be known absolutely what the understanding is between the Citizens leaders and the public service corporations, but it is evident on the face of the linear license tax ordinance that the politicians are not playing fair with the public. There is no reason why the ordinance should not become operative by the first of January at latest. May 1 is not the beginning of the fiscal year for either the city or the corporations. It is an arbitrary date, and except for one thing it might as well be fixed for November 1.

As for the one-year term of the ordinance it is a palpable attempt to bring the corporations directly into politics. The date, May 1, is perfectly adjusted for the ratification of bargains pertaining to the municipal elections in February and changes of administration in April. It is also well adapted to excite in the corporations a lively sense of danger impending during January and the early days of February when campaign funds or influence may happen to be needed.

Every one at all familiar with practical politics and legislation knows the evil of corporate influence and the worse evil of blackmailing the corporations. The corporations in ordinary cases would be glad enough to keep out of politics if they were let alone, but they are periodically dragged in and only allowed to go after a process of blood letting. The best preventive of this process is to subject the corporations to a reasonable taxation for the public benefit, since that frees them from any appearance of obligation for surreptitious favors. Such arrangements should be permanent, however, for an annual visitation, subject to inflation or contraction at will on the part of the political powers that be, is a perennial invitation and temptation to transfer a part of the tax from the public to a private account.

Russia Hunting Money.

From Berlin comes the report that M. Witte, late minister of finance at St. Petersburg and now president of the council of ministers of Russia, has been touring the capitals of Europe incognito to ascertain where it may be possible for Russia to negotiate a large loan, probably as much as $125,000,000. Only a few days ago the information came from St. Petersburg that M. Witte was looking to Wall street for financial assistance that could not be obtained in Europe. The two stories fit well together, and without accepting either as wholly true or authoritative, there is yet reason to believe that Russia does desire to borrow money to carry forward the huge enterprises it has undertaken under M. Witte's direction.

We do not believe it is a war fund that Russia is seeking. If Russia wanted war it has had several excellent opportunities lately to embroil itself either with Japan or Turkey. It has made considerable concessions—according to common interpretation of the Russian character—to avoid trouble and has taken pains to announce to the world that it is desirous of preserving the peace. The financial condition of the Russian empire is vastly better than that of Turkey, so that war is not impossible if war was desired at the present time.

Movements during the past 10 years, in fact ever since M. Witte became an influential factor in Russian national affairs, have pretty well indicated the fact that it is Russia's policy to avoid, if possible, any entanglements pending the industrial development of the empire. M. Witte has applied every resource to the improvement of means of transportation and the encouragement of agriculture and industry. He is still working to that end. As to what Russia may do when it finds itself rich and self-sustaining, that is another story. It may then engage in the game of war with better assurance of success. First of all, however, M. Witte is committed to cultivating the arts of peace, taking for his example the great republic of North America.

Coming Up to Date.

A glance at the map indicating the proposed improvements of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad gives the idea that the road is to be rebuilt. The changes made in the main line of the Pennsylvania road and those planned for the future amount to the same thing. The final result will be a new railroad. For both it will pay.

When the original Baltimore & Ohio railroad was built it was not dreamed it would grow to its present size. Cheap construction was an object. The line followed the easiest natural grades, where it could compete on favorable terms with wagon traffic. Local roads were added to the system by purchase or lease. The result has been a piece of patchwork. The various sections have been united with considerable skill. But advance in engineering thought and in construction methods and appliances have made possible much better work. Competition is no longer with wagons and stage coaches, but with modern steam railroads. Traffic has grown beyond the ability of pioneer, experimental rail lines to carry it. Changes must be made and it is wise, progressive policy to make them take the form of new, low grade routes.

It will cost large sums of money to make new roads through the mountains, but it is cheaper than to spend small sums daily in climbing heavy grades with half loads and in motive power overcoming the friction of wheels on short curves. Half a century ago first cost was a vital consideration. Today operating cost has taken first place. That road is cheapest over which freight can be carried at the least cost per ton. There has been a vast waste of resources in the making of railroads of inferior type, but it is better to throw away that investment than to continue working at a disadvantage.

IN THE EYE OF FAME.

Pietro Cartoni has given $200,000 to found a sanitarium for tuberculosis patients at Rome, in memory of his two sons who died of tuberculosis.

Gen. DeWet has become the head of a large political party in the Orange River colony. Every Boer returned from British prison camps at once joined Gen. DeWet's party, and, it is said, it now comprises a majority of the white population in the colony.

Gov. Alexander M. Dockery of Missouri, who surprised his personal and political friends by shaving off his "chin whiskers," has given the politicians of the state many sensations since he entered the executive office in 1900. His latest surprise was a speech made a few weeks ago in which he banded himself and his office with the Folk boodle hunters. Gov. Dockery had been a member of congress for 15 years before he was elected governor. He is also a farmer and a banker.

The President and the Unions.

If the American Federation of Labor comes to make the issue with the president formulated by the Central Labor union of the District of Columbia, the president can have no hesitation in meeting it squarely. A declaration that he is the president of the whole country, that he knows no distinction between citizens who are members of labor unions and citizens who are not, and that he will enforce the laws equally, regardless of the threats of trusts or labor unions, can meet with only one result—overwhelming support from the American people. The resolution of the District of Columbia union is sheer insolence. It presumes to regard in "an unfriendly light" an order of the president that the laws of the United States, and not the rules of a voluntary association of government employes, shall be obeyed in the government printing office. The objection to "the policy of the open shop," and the demand that the president "modify his order of no discrimination," amount to nothing less than an assertion of superiority to the law. The "policy of the open shop" in government establishments is the only one compatible with the fundamental principles of the American Constitution. Whatever private employers may do in the way of discrimination between workmen on account of their relationship to a private organization, the government, which owes equal consideration to all, cannot make any concessions without abdicating its authority as well as shirking its duty.—New York Tribune.

THE AUTOMATIC LIFE.

This life will soon become a thing
Of cylinders and wheels,
Push buttons, dynamos, and cogs,
And batteries, and reels.
Each day a man will be aroused
By some unique machine
Which will bring in his clothing, then
Shave him both quick and clean.

Fond lovers, when they feel inclined
To softly bill and coo,
Will start a phonograph which asks
"Whose ootsey 'oo is 'oo?"
His pocket phonograph will ask
If she will be his bride—
Her phonograph will breathe the "Yes"
Which waits in its inside.

When mother goes to call on friends,
Or to her club she won't
Be anxious for the children; she
Will start the auto-"Don't"
To going in the nursery
And hasten on, serene,
And knowing that she may rely
Upon the spank machine.

When father comes in much too late
He'll stumble on the stair,
And hear a terse: "How came you so?"
Come megaphoning there.
And after while, this life will be
Without a thing to do—
Some one will make a grand machine
To press the buttons, too.

The Quiet Observer.

By ERASMUS WILSON.

And what is fame?

A no less distinguished scholar and expert psychologist than Prof. Jules Thomas of Paris has written a book on Lafayette in which he proves to his own satisfaction, apparently, that the patriot Frenchman was "crazy with vanity," and "mad with ambition."

As a psychological study this may be all right, but it only goes to prove that greatness in any particular direction is indicative of madness, or suggestive of it at least.

Because a man becomes all wrapt up in a study, or wholly devoted to a scheme, or gives himself entirely to any particular thing, he is almost certain to be called a crank, looked upon as queer, or pointed out as having wheels in his head.

And yet it is just such men that get ahead in their particular line, and were it not for these the world would be just where it was and stay right there.

The all-round man, like an all-round wheel, runs his course without creating the least unusual stir, while the fellow with a abnormal bump not only makes an unusual noise, but he disturbs the settled condition of things.

* * * * *

A gentleman who spent several months of this year in the old world, mainly in Palestine and adjacent lands, says the people are living much as they did in the time of Abraham, while in Egypt there has been little improvement in agricultural and domestic life since the days of Joseph, he of the many-colored coat.

This man, who is interested in agriculture and agricultural implements, says they are still using the one-handled wooden plow, to which they tie an ox, or a cow, or an donkey, or a slave or two, or maybe a woman, and thus they scratch the ground, and trust to Allah to send them good crops.

By comparing the people and their customs with those described in the earliest histories, he came to the conclusion that since Joseph infused a little spirit of enterprise into the Egyptians they have done nothing but barely exist; nor have their neighbors, the Turks, done any better, seemingly being satisfied to stay right where they are.

He found some evidence of enterprise along the upper Nile, but it was confined almost entirely to Americans and Englishmen who have gone there to grow up with the country, as it were.

These told him that the natives will not take to improved agricultural implements, and so great is their antipathy to new things that as is difficult to get native harvest hands, much less regular farm help.

* * * * *

If you have paid attention to things in this country you cannot have failed to note that a new method of making a particular thing has hardly become settled until something better is flashed up.

Our school-children can recall the mule cars, and well remember the grip cars, which were thought to be the end of improvement. While it was a great advance in street travel, and very costly, it was short-lived, giving way completely to the trolley. At first it was thought this would answer for short lines only, on account of the difficulty in carrying electric energy to a great distance.

But all this has been changed, so that trolley lines may be operated to almost any extent. There are at present a number of lines extending from the city through country districts and to towns within a radius of 100 miles. And this is not the limit.

What will take the place of the trolley?

That's the question.

There will hardly be at any great change until some new form of force is discovered by which cars can be operated more economically than by electricity.

There being no substitute for electric energy in sight, nor even suggested, it will probably occupy the field for a long time.

* * * * *

There is a possibility, however slight, that the surface car will have to go. Just what may take its place no one seems to know.

The flying car has not panned out nearly as well as was fondly hoped or expected.

Air is good enough for birds to fly in, but hardly substantial enough for carrying people and other kinds of freight.

Were people as lightly built as birds we might hope to fly. But with its great weight, as compared with that of the eagle, a man would have to have wings as broad as thunder clouds to support and carry him as safely as birds are carried.

And yet something of the sort may lie in the near future; for, when such men as Prof. Langley, and other scientists give it years of study, and other scientists years of experimenting, there must be something in it.

Of one thing we may be assured, the present system of transportation is far from being perfect, and those who read this will not live to see the end of improvement.

Competition will lead to reducing the cost of operating lines of travel, and in this there is a wider field for the inventor, since scarcely one tenth of the energy in coal is available for operating electric motors.

Is it not possible to reverse this order of things, making the loss of coal energy less than one-tenth?

Here is the place for the inventor to get his work in, rather than up in the air.

* * * * *

It will be a sorry day for this country when our people are willing to say the end to improvement has come.

The Greek said as much, and his greatness departed at once.

The Egyptian said that with Joseph all improvement ended, and forth with Egypt began to die, and ere long was dead, and has been dead a long time. Whether new life can be pumped into it or not will be shown as soon as the great dam across the Nile has been completed and the proposed system of irrigation put into operation.

This dam will furnish electric energy enough to operate many miles of electric railways, besides mills, factories and other machinery.

But this, great as it may be, will not be a circumstance compared with the barren wastes, poor lands and uncertain crops that will be rendered sure and profitable by an abundant supply of water.

All this will so change the general condition of Egypt that a more enterprising people will be attracted, and a new civilization may quickly follow.

Is it not possible that the Jews may yet possess the land in which they once were slaves? It would be an ideal country for this ancient people, and they would cause it to flourish like a new found land.

* * * * *

There is an eternal fitness of things which we are not able to perceive. To us at the present time they may seem unfit, yet in times to come people may wonder at our stupidity, or shortness of sight.

Could we but understand that man is of no more account in the sight of nature, and cuts no greater figure in the course of natural events than any other animal, we might see things differently.

If in the course of natural events it becomes necessary to wipe out a nation it is wiped out—that's all.

There are at present several millions of human beings who are not worth while. That these will be wiped off the face of the earth by the forces of civilization is but a matter of course. There is the Turk, for instance, the Egyptian, and a whole lot more, that are not worth while.

The manner of their taking off we know not now, but when the time comes they will be taken off all right. Some may be killed in battle, some leave of their own accord, but the majority will succumb to the energetic atmosphere in which civilization does most vigorously flourish.

However, we need not worry about these people, although it is right and proper for us to bother about them some, for they are, in a sense, our neighbors, and as such we should hail them in a friendly way; but if they will not answer, nor even heed, then they must go their way, even to destruction.

War Histories.

Some day we shall have an impartial history of the war. The historian who writes it will not find it necessary, in order to give the north due credit for its achievement in preserving the union to attribute to the south less respect for principle, less reverence for the right, less love of all that is noblest and best in government than he ascribes to the victors in the civil war. He will adopt the broad and philosophical view of Charles Francis Adams that between 1788 and 1861 every American had to decide for himself whether he owed allegiance to a sovereign state or a sovereign nation, and "whichever way he decided he was right."—Baltimore Sun.

Talked of in New York

(By Private Wire to The Gazette.)

GEORGE C. JENKS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—This is the time of year when managers and actors meet in strenuous attack and defense. A close observer of the life of upper Broadway remarked to me last night that managers are as anxious to employ actors as the latter are to obtain engagements. Why the deuce don't they get together, then? Bluff; that is why. Actors who are on the Rialto now are either the hopelessly incompetent, or the class which insists on larger salaries than the manager cares to pay. It is the custom of many of the hardened managers to offer $40 a week to every actor of fair appearance who applies. If the player can show that he is worth more, he may get it, but it is difficult for him to make arrangements beforehand on any better basis than the $40. There is another reason why actors and managers cannot get together, and that is that the manager, always a busy man, leaves the selection of the cast largely to assistants, who are not good judges of human nature. At least so the managers say. It is the way of the understrappers to look carelessly over the applicants, and then to report to his chief that no material of value has offered itself. At this time of year the manager usually has taken the task of getting players into his own hands. Hence the strain.

Coney Gone to Smash.

Visitors to Coney Island today found things in a smashed and mussed-up condition. While the natives have been hard at work since Wednesday's storm, trying to get the place decent for Sunday, the damage done was too great to be entirely remedied. The piers were knocked out of shape, and boats from Manhattan have had to make a landing as they could, while passengers have been only too glad to get ashore in safety, and to get back to the land for the homeward trip without tumbling into the water. Boardwalks, restaurants, show places, hotels and other buildings, most of them flimsy in construction and material, were so badly battered in the hurricane, that the repairs done have only partly made up for its ravages. The general remarks of people who make their living at Coney is that it is a good thing the season is about at an end.

Big Bill Not Crushed.

Tammany is as far from a mayoralty candidate as ever it was. McClellan has not fallen immediately into the plans of the wigwam, and Murphy hardly knows where he is at. For that matter, the Fusionists are in about the same plight. The only complacent person whose face is to be seen o'ertopping the political billows is "Big Bill" Devery. He argues that the more the regulars quarrel among themselves, the greater his own chance. It takes a great deal to destroy Devery's confidence.

Another Ah Fong Girl Wedded.

American girls are not alone as a class of young women who take foreign husbands and bestow wealth on them as dowries. Word has just come here that a young Newark man, named Brewster, has won as a bride one of the beautiful Ah Fong girls at Honolulu. Their father is Ah Fong, and their mother was Portuguese. Ah Fong is worth more than $3,000,000, and he gives a dowry of $150,000 with each of his daughters. One of them was recently married to Lieut. A. J. Dougherty, who is serving in the Philippines. A Chinese woman named Dougherty is something unusual.

The Quiet Hydrophobia Hospital.

The Pasteur institute in Central park west, is a modest house, which might be a flat dwelling or the private residence of a well-to-do public official. It is tall and thin, and there is nothing to indicate its use except a modest plate on the front door. But the number of distinguished persons there is always very large, although strict secrecy is maintained as to their identity. It is reported that a member of the Portuguese legation at Washington is a patient there just now.

A Dirty Swindler.

It seems as if swindlers make a target of Catholics in this city. It is so common to hear that some one has been collecting money for supposed charitable or religious objects, or taking subscriptions for Catholic books and relics, that the clergy are suspicious. Devout Catholics, particularly women, are easily swindled. The police have just landed a man who may be at the head of the gang that has been working the city, and it is expected that he will get a heavy sentence if they can make as good a case against him as they hope.

No Ditch Wanted.

Now George B. McDonald, the rapid transit contractor, says he is not in favor of an open ditch for the railway. All he wants is to be allowed to carry on his work in lower Broadway according to contract, opening the roadway in the night and closing it in the daytime. He and the chief engineer, George M. Parsons, have come to an understanding, and the work downtown goes merrily on.

Sunday Music in the Park.

The Seventh Regiment band, which is considered a crack organization, gave a concert in Central park this afternoon. Pittsburgh's own Victor Herbert was represented among the composers, with his morceau, "Ocean Breezes." The program opened with the "Star-Spangled Banner," and ended with a wedding march by Rubinstein. Sandwiched in were numbers by Wagner, Schubert, Massenet, Verdi and other musical swells, which made up a feast of harmony that would have cost the listeners two or three dollars apiece in a hall. It was a "free blow" at the city's expense, as it was.

Sunday in the Metropolis.

New York is not a bad place in which to spend a Sunday if one is a stranger. Besides the free concerts in the parks, the parks themselves, the view of the Hudson from Riverside, the museums and other public institutions, which may be enjoyed for nothing, there are many places of amusement open in the evening, admission to which does not mean much expense. Then there are the churches. The man who cannot enjoy a visit to one of the important churches of Manhattan, where some famous preacher occupies the pulpit, is hard to satisfy. There is something here for all tastes.

Restaurant Music Again.

New Yorkers and others who take many of their meals in public are still arguing the question whether there should be music in restaurants at the dinner or luncheon hour. Managers of restaurants say they would like to dispense with the orchestra, but that when the music stops for one day there is such a howl from their patrons that they are obliged to get the orchestra at work again to drown the noise. Does not that settle it?

Chamberlain's Coup.

The resignation of Mr. Chamberlain from the British cabinet because Prime Minister Balfour was not willing to go the whole length with him at once in his fiscal proposals, is, strangely enough, accompanied at the same time by the resignation of Mr. Ritchie, the chancellor of the exchequer, because the prime minister was willing to make any concessions at all to the fiscal proposals of the colonial secretary.

On the one hand, Mr. Chamberlain is the head and front of the movement for the revision of the present free trade system along the lines of a "preferential" tariff, while Mr. Ritchie is an uncompromising free trader who unreservedly sets his face against Chamberlain from the start.

These simultaneous resignations from the cabinet, each from a directly opposite motive, now make it plain that the premier's policy of temporary compromise has been a failure, and that Chamberlain is determined to lose no time in forcing the issue upon the country.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

+ + + +

Mr. Chamberlain's reason for resigning is that he wishes a free hand. He wishes to inaugurate a rousing campaign, with speeches and pamphlets, and cannot do so without embarrassment, while in the cabinet. The publications of his Birmingham committee have already brought him under criticism, and he desires to be in a position of full independence. "Fiscal reform," or mild protection, has his support, but he goes further and tries to carry at the same time the program of tariff preferences within the empire. He appreciates Mr. Balfour's desire that he should remain in the cabinet, but thinks it best both for the Unionist party and for his own cause that he should withdraw. A new political situation is created. As Mr. Chamberlain is the most forcible public speaker and most formidable debater in English public life, his speeches this fall will no doubt attract a great deal of attention, from both friend and foe.—Baltimore Sun.

+ + + +

All the world loves a fighting man, one who sacrifices political power and personal preferment for his principles, and for that reason Mr. Chamberlain's bold stand will impel admiration. He has contended from the first that England cannot increase her trade with her colonies and cement the trade relations and harmonious feelings without offering these colonies some inducement. This, in Mr. Chamberlain's opinion, can be done only by placing a tariff on the enormous food importations from other countries. The colonies and dependencies of Great Britain were expected, in appreciation of this preferential tariff, to become larger purchasers of British manufactured products. Satisfied that his policy is correct and holds in its adoption the continued and increasing prosperity of both England and her colonies, Mr. Chamberlain has courageously announced his willingness to make the political sacrifice necessary to secure the adoption of his views. He is convinced that England cannot be won from her free-trade policy in one campaign. He is confident that an appeal to the country will result in the defeat of his party, but he has an abiding faith that the triumph of the Liberals on such an issue would be but short-lived and his program would be finally approved and adopted by the people.—Washington Post.

The present house of commons was elected in 1900, and but for Mr. Chamberlain's tariff scheme it has every prospect of being a long-lived one. Before this "apple of discord" was thrown among them the ministerialists held about 400 of the total 670 seats in the house, giving them an ample working majority. Today the Unionist party is hopelessly split. For the second time in his career Mr. Chamberlain has torn asunder a great party. As he divided the Liberals against themselves and wrecked Gladstone's last administration, so now he rends the Unionists and marks Balfour's ministry for an early death.

Hastily—the wish plainly fathering the thought—the Liberal organs are saying that Mr. Chamberlain has destroyed himself. The soberer English opinion seems to be that he will become, as a free lance, the leader of a tremendous agitation, of which Birmingham, the capital of the languishing iron and steel trade, will be the center, for the protectionist policy on which he has staked his whole future. If in the end, as seems on the whole probable, the British people vote down that policy, Mr. Chamberlain's life will close in defeat. But he is a superb political gladiator, and it will be a great conflict.—New York World.

+ + + +

That closer alliance with the colonies for which Mr. Chamberlain has labored is a matter of tremendous import. It involves many considerations and many apparently conflicting interests. It has been well said that revolutions never go backward, and it is likely to prove true in this case. Some change is coming of moment to the empire. Just what it will be no man is wise enough to foretell, but it is certain that for the next few months the eyes of the civilized world will be on Great Britain. The heroes are all dead, but there are left many men of great abilities, consummate tact and tremendous energy. In the conflict between these forces the future of the empire will be established, and whatever party wins it is easy to believe that there will be forged stronger bonds of unity. One thing is certain. Mr. Chamberlain will not be beaten until after one of the greatest political contests in Great Britain since the repeal of the Corn laws.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

+ + + +

Joseph Chamberlain's resignation from the British cabinet means that that astute politician will now go before the people with his "preferential tariff" proposition and endeavor to secure approval. Will he get it? It seems a hopeless task that the ex-secretary for the colonies has set for himself, and yet the very fact that he has chosen that task is significant. No one imagines that Mr. Chamberlain is unmindful of his own career, and it is not likely that he would stake it on the result of a move of the kind unless he thought he had at least a fair chance of success. And Mr. Chamberlain is an adept in the art of securing popular approval. In subordinating the economic argument for a "preferential tariff" to the idea that it will knit the colonies to the mother country and conserve the solidarity of the empire he has hit upon a most effective way of appealing to the British spirit of patriotism. His campaign of education will now begin, and he is a bold man who will assert that it is inevitably doomed to failure. The situation is an interesting one.—Baltimore News.

MOODY IS OPPOSED TO GENERAL STAFF

Secretary of the Navy Convinced That Organization is Unnecessary.

DUTIES ARE NOW DISTRIBUTED

General Board Now Performs Some of the Functions Formerly Belonging to the Influential Bureau of Construction. Secretary Visits Annapolis.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—It is said on what may be regarded as good authority that Secretary of the Navy Moody is opposed to the plan to have for the navy a general staff on the same lines as that just inaugurated for the army. Mr. Moody thinks there is no necessity for such an organization in the navy; that all the functions that it is proposed to have it perform are now properly taken care of by the general board, the board of construction and the chiefs of the different bureaus.

Secretary Moody thinks very well of the general board, of which Admiral Dewey is the head, and although he has not seen fit to adopt all the recommendations made by it he is of the opinion that it is a very valuable organization.

Following out his intention not to encourage the establishment of a general staff, Secretary Moody has made a reassignment of the duties of certain of the boards and bureaus of the navy department. He has curtailed the functions of the powerful board on construction, transferring some of its former work to the general board, which evidently is destined to become a very influential organization. The board on construction has been informed that it need not take the trouble of considering and recommending types of vessels for construction.

Given Some Practical Work.

Under the Long administration this board determined what the department should ask of congress in the way of new ships and was a potent factor in determining the building policy. All this work is now to be handled by the general board. Up to this time this board has confined itself to suggesting theories and policies for adoption in the service, but now it is to be given some of the practical work.

Secretary Moody says that while he was on the cruise on the Caribbean sea in company with Chairman Foss of the house naval committee, and other influential members of the house, he became convinced that the sentiment among the leaders in that body was opposed to the idea of a general staff for the navy. Consequently he proposes to leave the whole thing alone and permit Chairman Hale of the senate naval committee and Chairman Foss of the house committee to suggest any legislation that may be necessary on the subject.

Orders have been received by the naval officers at the Crescent shipyards at Elizabeth to remove the United States cruiser Chattanooga and the two torpedo boats Nicholson and O'Brien to the Brooklyn navy yard for completion. The naval board which has been appraising the value of the work done on the vessels finished its work days ago.

The reputation of the Crescent plant for strikes is not being allowed to suffer on account of the recent shutdown. Thirty-two laborers employed by the government, who have been loading and packing up material preparatory to the departure of the vessels, went on strike today for more pay. They were getting $1.36 and demanded $2 a day.

ANNAPOLIS, Sept. 20.—Secretary of the Navy Moody visited the Naval academy today as the guest of Superintendent Brownson. The purpose of his visit was to look into the needs of the institution, and with the superintendent he inspected the quarters of the midshipmen. It is conjectured that Secretary Moody had a consultation with Captain Brownson in regard to the outbreak of hazing.

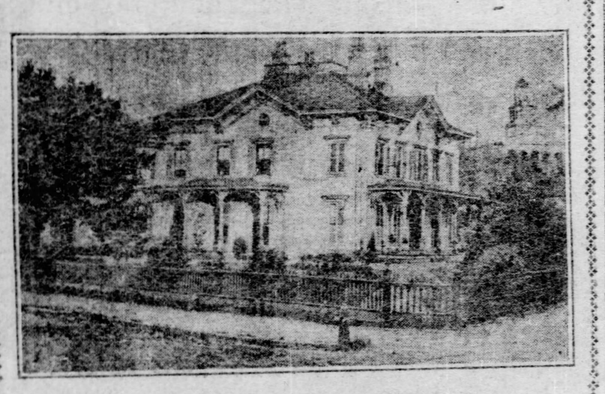
Noted Veteran Lawyer and His New Castle Home



BRILLIANT CAREER OF MR. KURTZ, NEW CASTLE

Golden Wedding Anniversary Recalls Recollections of a Busy Life.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW CASTLE, PA., Sept. 20.—The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Davis B. Kurtz of this city occurred last week, but on account of the recent death of their son, the late Louis Taylor Kurtz of this city, the anniversary was not observed. However, the anniversary recalls the long and brilliant legal career of Mr. Kurtz, one of the best known attorneys of this state, and is the only Lawrence county lawyer who has practised law here continuously since Little Lawrence was formed from Beaver and Mercer counties. Mr. Kurtz was born in the Juniata Valley and was admitted to practice law in Union county in February, of 1849. He came to this city the following April and assisted in the organization of Lawrence county that summer. The first court was held here in September, of 1849 and Mr. Kurtz was the only lawyer admitted then to practice. He has attended court every session of court ever held in this county during the past 54 years, with the single exception of one special term about 18 years ago, which was held while he was in the west trying a land case before the Dakota supreme court. Mr. Kurtz has long practiced before all the Pennsylvania courts and also all the United States courts, including the United States supreme court. He is also a member of the Ohio bar and of the bar of nearly every county in this part of the state.

Davis B. Kurtz.

Mr. Kurtz was married September 16, 1852, to Miss Julia M. Wilder, daughter of the late Shubel Wilder, a pioneer of this city. Their union was blessed with five children, of whom four survive. Col. Charles M. Kurtz, the eldest, long ago attained prominence as an art critic and will be in charge of the art department of the St. Louis world's fair next summer. He also occupied the same position at the Chicago world's fair of 1893, at the recent St. Louis-Mississippi exposition and at the last world's fair at Paris, when he was first assistant to the American commissioner. Attorney Louis Taylor Kurtz, whose death occurred suddenly this summer, was the second son and was in partnership with his father. The third son, Prof. Fritz Kurtz, is a member of the faculty of the mining department of Columbia university. The Misses Emily and Katherine Kurtz are at home.

The Kurtz residence is located on Pittsburgh street and Croton avenue, and occupies nearly a square in the heart of the business center of the city. The accompanying photograph shows the court house in the distance, beyond the Kurtz residence.

ENGINEERS STUDY LATEST WRINKLES

Original Method Used by Reading Road to Coach Employes.

IT IS A PRACTICAL SCHOOL

Aspirants for Places at the Throttle Hear Illustrated Lectures Upon Huge Machines Which Draw the Trains on Great Railroad System.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The Reading railroad has started a school for some of its employes and the engineers and firemen who will be pupils on the road are delighted with it. In the shops of the company in Philadelphia there has been set up a complete locomotive, handsomely mounted in a heavy frame work. The plant serves the two-fold purpose of enabling old engineers to familiarize themselves with the latest improvements in the machinery of a locomotive and of providing aspirants for the position at the throttle with a working model of all the important parts in connection with the driving of an engine on the railroad.

Experts on the building and running of locomotives give lectures on the business and every emergency which may face an engineer is covered and the best ways of meeting it are explained to firemen who aspire for promotion to the throttle.

Among the callers at the little room in which the equipment has been set up are many old engineers. When an invention of any sort is adopted by the railroad the procedure is to have it affixed to the locomotives as fast as they can be spared from the rails and sent to the shops. The improvement is not used until all the engines are equipped. Then a general order is sent out for the invention to come into play. Meanwhile it will be on exhibition at this new department so that it can be studied by engineers at their leisure. Lectures on all topics relating to the running of a locomotive will be given from time to time and explained by blackboard diagrams and working models.

The school has been so successful that it is said other great railroad systems contemplate establishing similar institutions.

NEGRO BAPTISTS HEARD STORY OF NATIVE LAND

Interesting Service Held Yesterday by the National Convention.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20.—World-wide evangelization characterized the spirit of the four services of the National Baptist convention at the Export Exposition building today. Fully 1,500 persons were in attendance at the missionary mass meeting. Five native Africans made their own plea in song and story for Africa's redemption.

The Rev. Dr. Mojola Agbebi, a native African of Sago institute, Sago, Africa, after briefly reviewing the progress of church work in this country, said: "The American negro should help to redeem Africa, and the work must be in a large degree done by them."

The Rev. Dr. J. A. Boker of Texas delivered the conventional sermon, in which he urged upon the negro race to be patient, God-fearing and industrious and the problems which now confront the negro in America would solve themselves.

The Sunday schools of the city, representing 21 churches, held a platform meeting this afternoon and listened to addresses by John S. Trower, president of the Pennsylvania State Baptist Sunday School convention, and Miss N. H. Burroughs of Kentucky, corresponding secretary of the Woman's National Baptist convention. CHESTER D. POTTER.

TWO MEN KILLED WHILE SLEEPING IN CABOOSE

Their Failure to Set the Signal Is Said to Be Responsible for the Wreck.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BROWNSVILLE, PA., Sept. 20.—Two men were instantly killed in a freight wreck on the Monongahela railroad at Bridgeport at 3 o'clock this morning. They are:

SAMUEL E. MILLER, flagman, 25 years old, of Uniontown; crushed in caboose.

WILLIAM W. GATELY, brakeman, of Mahonngtown, 25 years old; caught in caboose and crushed.

Extra No. 1340 was taking water on the main track just below Bridgeport, and the men killed were sleeping in the caboose. The blame of the accident probably rests with them, for no flag was out to warn other trains. The train was a heavy one, with 40 cars of mixed freight. Extra coke engine No. 5, in the heavy fog, crashed into the caboose. The locomotive was neither damaged nor derailed, but the caboose and one car of coke in front of it were demolished. Both men were crushed beneath the timbers of the caboose, although their mangled bodies were recovered before the debris took fire. The flames were extinguished after the caboose and one car of coke had been consumed. These are the second and third deaths on the Monongahela road, which was opened August 31.

None of the district officers attended. It was stated during the meeting that the new Rockmen's union would not be opposed to the mine workers' organization. The rockmen of Scranton have a union with over 1,600 members.

MEXICANS ARE FLEEING FROM THE DREADED FEVER

Reports from Several Cities Say That Deaths from Yellow Jack Are Numerous.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

MONTEREY, MEXICO, Sept. 20.—Dr. Roy Martin, quarantine inspector for the government, who recently returned from Linares, declares that the city is dead commercially, and partly deserted on account of the prevalence of yellow fever. Although there are less than 200 cases in Linares, there are fully 2,000 people sick with various ailments.

Latest advices from Victoria state that but 42 cases of yellow fever now exist in that city. The municipal authorities of Victoria now feel that they will shortly have stamped out the fever. Mr. W. H. Leonard, representative of the bridge and masonry contractors on the Monterey division of the Mexican Central railroad, reports a most deplorable situation among the different construction camps along the line.

He says that there is scarcely a camp without yellow fever and that there are many deaths. As these camps must be more or less centers of infection, it would be well to close them up until the epidemic has passed. Tampico is largely diminishing the number of cases of yellow fever, the average number of cases weekly now being seven.

BURNED BY ACID.

Young Girl at Mechanicsburg Is Badly Disfigured—Mob Violence Talked Of.

MECHANICSBURG, O., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—Bessie Wood, the 15-year-old daughter of Harry Wood, a mail carrier of this city, was the victim last night of a carbolic acid-throwing outrage. She was at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Joiner, and had stepped into the yard, when she heard some one say, "Hurry up." Then she noticed some persons so close she could have touched them. She felt something being thrown over her face which commenced to burn.

She ran to the house and was taken to Dr. Baker's office, where her burns were taken care of. The acid made a horseshoe-shaped scar, burning her cheeks and extending over her eyes, which would have been put out if it had not been for a pair of glasses. She also received a burn on her chest. No arrests have been made, but a clew is discovered which is being worked out. The citizens are indignant and mob violence to the perpetrators is feared.

TO MAKE IMPROVEMENTS.

George Gould After Seeing Kansas City Yards Declares for Better Facilities.

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 20.—George J. Gould, with his sons, Kingdon and Jay, in company with a number of Missouri Pacific officials, spent several hours in Kansas City today. During his stay Mr. Gould made a personal inspection of the Missouri Pacific properties in West Kansas City.

He was astonished at the ravages wrought by the flood and declared that the Missouri Pacific facilities for handling freight in Kansas City must be extended. The Gould party arrived in Kansas City on his special train from Osawattomie, Kan., and left by way of the Wabash for St. Louis.

Dedicated New Cemetery.

The new cemetery of the German Catholic church of Tarentum, was dedicated yesterday afternoon. A parade of two bands, orders and societies of the church, visiting priests and members of the congregation marched from the church to the cemetery, which is about a mile out of town. Fully 2,000 people took part. The Rev. Father Means, rector of the church, conducted the services, assisted by priests from neighboring parishes and a choir of 20 voices. The Rev. Father Otten of Sharpsburg made the dedicatory address. The cemetery was established about a year ago and covers eight acres.

Two Messages at Once.

UTICA, Sept. 20.—An invention in the telegraph service has been put into use on the New York Central railroad, between Utica and Albany. By means of the apparatus a single wire can be used for telegraph and telephone messages at the same time. While the operator is ticking away a telegram in Morse code, another person can telephone a message without the slightest interference.

ANXIOUSLY AWAIT VERDICT OF THE JURY

Uniontown Citizens Spent Yesterday Watching for Finding in Arnold Case.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

UNIONTOWN, PA., Sept. 20.—There has been a Sunday of suspense by those waiting for a verdict in the Arnold infanticide case. The jury deliberated until midnight and then slept until this morning, guarded by two tipstaves. About 9 o'clock this morning the courthouse bell rang, which was the signal agreed upon in case a verdict was reached. Hundreds of people ran to the courthouse, which was soon filled.

The attorneys for both sides took their places and the prisoners were brought into the court room. Judge McClung explained that the jury had returned for further instructions. The judge then gave them the same instructions as yesterday, and Foreman Bliss asked if the reasonable doubt applied the same in a second degree verdict as in the first, and Judge McClung said that it applied throughout. The jury then filed back into the room, where they have been since.

Judge McClung at the session this morning warned the people against making any demonstration on the streets and asked that all who did so be brought before the court and he would punish them. Judge McClung returned to Pittsburgh this morning and Judge Reppert will assemble court in case a verdict is reached. James M. Clark, father of Mrs. Arnold, returned yesterday to his home in Jefferson township and will not return for the verdict. Arnold's father is in town, but said he would not go to the court room in case of a verdict.

SHAFFER IS SILENT.

President of the Amalgamated Refused to Discuss Charges Against Him.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—President Shaffer of the Amalgamated association arrived here today. On being interviewed regarding the charges said to have been made against him, replied: "At present I have nothing to say. When the proper time comes I will make a statement."

President Shaffer was present at a meeting of East Youngstown lodge this afternoon, which recently suspended Vice President George Harbin of this district, for failing to pay his dues. It is said the feeling among the members of the lodge is to have the suspension stand. Vice President Harbin explained he had left the money for his dues, but it failed to reach the lodge.

CRUSHED LEG SECOND TO LOVE FOR SWEETHEART

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—James McConnell, a craneman at the Valley mill, had his right leg crushed. He was taken to a surgeon where the injured member was bandaged. It was then decided to send him to the hospital. McConnell refused to go and finally said he has a sweetheart whom he wanted to be near, and preferred taking chances of being near his girl than to have his leg amputated.

NEW CASTLE, Sept. 20.—(Special.)—The members of the New Castle Press club were tendered a banquet tonight by one of their number, Raymond Locke, now city editor of the Butler Daily Eagle, in honor of his approaching marriage to Miss Gertrude Elliott of Plain Grove, this county. WASHINGTON, PA., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—The first serious clash between the freshmen and sophomores at Washington and Jefferson college occurred at an early hour this morning, when the second year men captured a score of freshies and locked them in the college gymnasium. The town was covered with posters, informing the first year men how to conduct themselves.

GAME WARDEN SHOT MAN TO SAVE HIMSELF

Foreigner Made Desperate Fight When an Attempt Was Made to Arrest Him.

WILKESBARRE, PA., Sept. 20.—E. W. Campbell of West Pittston, one of the game wardens of Luzerne county, has shot a man near Campbell's ledge, two miles from Pittston. His name is Roman Dalos, aged 35 years. Campbell went to Pittston and gave himself up to the authorities.

Several foreigners have been violating the game laws, especially on Sundays. Campbell, with other officers, found five men today prowling in the woods with guns. He notified them to leave, which they refused to do. An attempt was made to put Dalos under arrest when the latter raised his gun to shoot. Campbell grabbed the weapon. It was discharged in the scuffle, the contents tearing Campbell's clothing to shreds.

Both men fell to the ground, Dalos being a large man, inside all attempt to recharge the gun, on doing which, Campbell pulled his revolver and in a second struggle Dalos was shot, the ball striking him in the back. The prisoner after being shot grappled again with the officer and showed fight until he was overpowered by the other officers who came to Campbell's relief.

The injured man's condition is serious and his wounds may prove fatal. Campbell gave bail for a further hearing on Tuesday morning. The other four hunters are under arrest.

PEAR TREE BLOSSOMS WITH FRUIT ON BRANCHES

CANAL DOVER, O., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—A horticultural curiosity of more than usual interest is attracting much attention at the home of Albert Kuenzli, at New Philadelphia. It is a pear tree, planted three years ago, which has borne fruit for two years, this year's product being still on the tree, which has again blossomed out with over 250 blossoms. The blossoms are perfect and seem to be of more than ordinary strength, as they have not yet been injured by the heavy frosts. A branch of the tree will probably be exhibited at the county fair next month.

LEAGUE GAMES TODAY.

Brooklyn at Exposition park (two games).

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WHEELING, W. VA., Sept. 20.—The Wheeling Central leaguers tackled the National champions this afternoon before a large crowd and lost, 8 to 4. Pittsburgh bunched its hits in the first inning when the locals had stage fright. After that it was a very pretty contest.

Wheeling couldn't hit Kennedy when it wanted hits, while the hammering "Dummy" Rosson got was rather surprising to the admirers of the mute twirler. The hit column, however, represents a scattering assortment. The base running of the Pittsburghers was too fast to suit Wheeling. Another feature was the lightning double play, Clarke to Ritchey to Bransfield. For Wheeling the hitting of Curtis and Rosson's fielding of bunts were features, but there was nothing sensational in the game.

Manager Clarke signed Curtis for Pittsburgh and it is understood the Wheeling management got a nice sum for the heavy hitting outfielder. Score:

CURTIS TO PLAY IN GAMES TODAY

New Outfielder Is Big Right-Hand Hitter and Fast—Kruger Is Better.

"BROWNIE" GESSLER POPULAR

Outfielder Curtis, signed by Pittsburgh from the Wheeling Central league team, will make his first appearance in the National league this afternoon at Exposition park in the double-header with Brooklyn. Curtis' release was purchased by President Dreyfuss Saturday night. Secretary Locke, who took the champions to Wheeling yesterday, said last night that the object of the trip to the Nail city was to get a line on the new player.

"Curtis is a strapping big righthander and a very hard hitter," said Locke. "He, too, is fast in the field and on the bases. He is heavy, but that does not seem to affect his speed. It was necessary to purchase his release in order to escape the reservation 'and' President Dreyfuss bought him before he saw him in the game."

Third Baseman Lobert, the local player, will be tried out today by Pittsburgh. Lobert has been making a good record among the local amateur teams and he will be put on the bag while Leach is out of the game.

Outfielder Kruger was reported to be in an improved condition yesterday. He regained consciousness, but strange to say did not recognize the Brooklyn players who visited him.

The exhibition game with Wheeling yesterday will likely be the last of this season for the Pirates. Manager Hammerly of the Wilmerding team, last night was seeking a game with the champions for Friday at Wilmerding, but Secretary Locke said it is improbable that Clarke will consent to the game and that the date with the Columbus American association club for next Sunday at Columbus will be cancelled. The New Yorks will be here the last three days of this week and as this series will be a hard one, Clarke desires to give his men a rest after it. Winham will probably pitch the first game this afternoon.

Harry (Brownie) Gessler, the Brooklyn right fielder, is a very popular young man in this section. He formerly played at Greensburg and yesterday quite a crowd of his friends from that town visited him. Gessler is a former Washington and Jefferson player and last summer played the outfield at Punxsutawney, where his parents now reside.

M'GINNITY INVINCIBLE.

With Good Support the "Iron Man" Puts It All Over Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—New York's play today outclassed that of the locals in every department of the game. McGinnity was invincible, excepting in one inning, when half of the hits made off him scored Chicago's only runs. Attendance, 25,000. Score:

LYCEUM IS STRONG.

Has Good Men to Fill Vacancies and Seeks Championship.

The Lyceum will be represented on the gridiron this year by a strong team. Most of the old players, who contributed so much to make the team so successful last year, are already reported for practice as well as many new candidates. In the line there will be few changes. McMahon and Gillespie will look after the ends and McKeever will be the tackles, and Reilly will play guard. Edkins, who played center last year, will be missing as also Sweeney, the right guard. To fill these vacancies Lyceum has Deacy, Clare, Kenna and Henderson, the guard of last year's Oil City team. In the back field there will be no vacancies.

This year Lyceum under the direction of a coach hopes to have at least a look at the championship. Games are expected from E. E. A. C., A. A. A., Swissvale, W. U. P. and other strong teams of this locality. Address David J. Ryan, Lyceum, Washington street, city.

JOHNSTOWN CHALLENGES.

Will Play Boston Nationals and Wants Millvale.

JOHNSTOWN, PA., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—The Johnstown club desires a good attraction for next Friday and Saturday. The Boston National league club will play here Tuesday, September 29.

Although the Johnstown club has offered to play the first of a series of games in Pittsburgh with either the P. A. C. or Millvale teams, neither club has been heard from lately. The Johnstown team will give two games with each club in Pittsburgh if return dates are assured.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK AT WESTMINSTER

Coach Edmundson Will Have Good Material to Work With. Moore Delighted.

MERCER IS A CANDIDATE

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW CASTLE, PA., Sept. 20.—The football outlook at Westminster college is brighter this year than ever before and the college will this season be represented on the gridiron by the strongest team in the history of the institution. Capt. Moore is delighted with the number of last year's team again in school and with the large number of candidates for the team. Practice has just begun and will be steadily continued, as the season will open September 25 at New Wilmington, which is one of the open dates yet to fill. Among the members of Westminster's 1902 men who are again in school are Crooks, center; Parisen and Metts, guards; Montcer and Tweedy, tackles; Capt. Moore, quarterback; Lamble and Scott, halfbacks; Tennent and McBride, ends, and Elliott, fullback.

The new men are showing up so strongly that a place on last year's team will not in itself win the "W" this fall, but energetic work on the field will be required to secure a position on the eleven. Mercer of the Pittsburgh Academy eleven is a promising man, while Orr of Harrisburg and Wilson of Detroit are also strong candidates. McBride, the star end of Muskingum college last year, and Campbell, a Westminster college tackle of last year, are also in uniform on Westminster's athletic field and at work with the team. Among last year's scrub eleven who have had good, hard football experience and are eligible candidates for the "varsity this fall are Love, Mercer, Randolph, McCarter, Stewart, Davidson, Long and Calhoun.

Coach Edmundson, who so successfully handled last year's eleven, will be the coach again this fall. He will arrive the last of the week and take charge of the men, when regular daily practice will be indulged in secretly.

GRANNAN IN TOWN.

Famous Turfman Pays Social Visit to Pittsburgh, but Does Not Bet on Baseball.

Riley Grannan, the famous turfman, is in Pittsburgh. He arrived in this city yesterday morning to spend the day with friends, he said, and that his visit had no business significance. When it was known that Grannan was here the report gained circulation that he would lay wagers on the series between Pittsburgh and the Boston American league champions. He, however, stated that he is not interested much in baseball, and had made no wagers on the coming series, although he had bet last spring that Pittsburgh would win the peonant again.

Grannan also said that he will be at the next meet at New Orleans and at Hot Springs, where a new track will be built. He leaves for New York this evening.

CHICAGO BEATEN; EMSLIE IS BLAMED

Record-Breaking Crowd Sees Giants Keep Cubs Out of Second Place.

POLICE RESCUE THE UMPIRE

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Chicago saw one of the most remarkable baseball games in its history today. There was a record-breaking crowd—the greatest ever seen in Chicago, nearly 30,000 people gathering to see the locals and the Giants struggle for second place.

After the last man was out several thousand of them remained to tell Umpire Emslie what they thought of him, and they did not take the trouble to use diplmatic language, either. The few hundred that could get closest to him as he came through the grandstand on his way to the office of the ball club crowded around him, hooting his way through the stand, taunted him with epithets and practically mobbed him until a burly policeman in uniform, flanked by a couple of plain clothes men, forced a way through the crowd and brought the umpire in safety to the office.

Nobody laid a hand upon Emslie, but it was the closest thing to the mobbing of an umpire that has ever been witnessed in a Chicago baseball park. It took eight minutes for Umpire Emslie, aided by the policemen, to make his way through the shouting mob from the ball field to the upper deck of the grandstand. This incident came as the climax to an afternoon filled with excitement at the West Side park, in the course of which the Microbes lost the game and were temporarily debarred from stepping into second base, which hinged upon the result of the game.

The decision which caused most of the trouble came right off the reel in the first inning. Two of the Giants were out when Babb knocked a grounder to Evers. The second baseman fumbled it, but recovered himself quickly and threw to first. It was nip and tuck between Babb and the ball, but Emslie gave Babb the decision and said he was safe. There were two men on bases at the time and this would have been the third out. But after the decision came a two-bagger and a single that scored four runs and gave the Giants a heart-breaking lead.

In the third inning, when Chicago scored the only two runs it secured, Emslie made another decision against Chicago which cost the Microbes a run. Slagle had made a two-bagger, McCarthy went out and Chance hit a hot one to Babb that apparently beat out. But Emslie could not see it and called him out. After that an error by Lauder and singles by Tinker and Kling scored Slagle and Jones and would have scored Chance had he been given first on the close decision. Thus Chicago would have made three runs.

As the Giants made but two runs in addition to the four secured after the decision in the first inning, the score would have been 3 to 2 in favor of Chicago had Emslie seen things the way most of the immense crowd did.

NEW SIGNAL SYSTEM FOR AUTOMOBILES PROVIDES FOR THE SAFETY OF TOURISTS ON THE HIGHWAY

Signs Two Feet Square Give Warnings to Drivers of Automobiles.

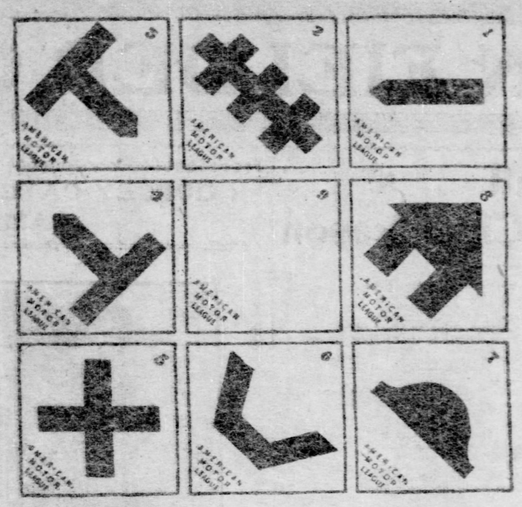
TELL WHAT IS BEFORE THEM

Signs Placed at Convenient Intervals Along Country Highways Indicate to the Motorist What Obstacles He Will Encounter—Help to Farmers Also.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The American Motor league has devised a series of warning signs, to be put up at points along the roadside wherever condition are such as call for reduced speed or unusual caution on the part of persons using motor cars, though in most cases these signs will be found useful to other persons making use of the public roads. The designs adopted by the league are in some respects similar to the caution signs put up by the English, French and Italian automobile associations, though less complicated, it having been the aim of the league to reduce each sign to its lowest terms of simplicity, so that each will tell its story at a glance and by the use of the fewest marks possible.

Each sign is to be made of heavy enameled sheet steel, with black figures on a white background, the dimensions being 24 inches square. All signs are to be put up "cornerwise," with angle at the top. This form, combined with white enameled face of the steel, being calculated to stand out most conspicuously against any ordinary landscape. To add to this effect each post will be painted white, and the sign can thus be more easily distinguished at night by the driver of a rapidly moving car.



The Signals.

Referring to the numbered signs shown in the cut, No. 1 indicates approach to a steep descent; No. 2, approach to a railroad crossing; No. 3, approach to a steep branch road (to right); No. 4, approach to a ditch or abrupt depression in the road; No. 5, approach to a hummock or "thank you, ma'am;" No. 8, approach to a city, village or other collection of inhabited dwellings; No. 9 is a general caution signal, indicating the proximity of any danger or obstruction not scheduled above, as, for example, a wrecked bridge, a temporary excavation in the roadway, a broken down vehicle in the road, the moving of a building across the highway, the presence of a crowd or assemblage of people immediately ahead, or any other condition requiring caution. No. 9 is a plain white sign, and can be improvised in emergent cases by using a sheet of white cloth fastened upon a board of proper shape. Each sign is placed at a distance of not less than 200 nor more than 300 yards from the point to which it refers.

To enable automobilists at points distant from league headquarters to put up signs of wood, the league has issued the following specifications, with the accompanying sketch:

"Materials needed—One board 15½ feet long by 10 inches wide, or 10½ feet long by 15 inches wide and one inch thick, free from knots or other hurtful defects; one stout post 14 feet long and not less than 6x6 inches in dimensions; 36 screws 1¾ to 2 inches long; 3 half-inch iron bolts, long enough to pass through the sign and post, allowing for nut at end; 1 quart good white mixed paint.

"Directions—Plane your board and cut into lengths of 30 inches, 4 lengths for a 15-inch board or 6 lengths for a 10-inch board; paint both sides, then fasten together with screws, laying the front and back pieces at right angles, as shown in the sketch; bore holes through sign and post and bolt them securely together, so that the top of the post shall just reach the top of sign; add two coats of white paint to both sign and post and finish by painting symbol on face of sign. Paper stencils are supplied by the league to insure uniformity in size and shape of symbols; set up sign in hole 4 feet deep, fill and tamp securely. The face of the sign should be turned slightly in the direction of approach (away from the point to which the sign refers), so as to make an angle of about 30 degrees with the line of the road. When completed the bottom of the sign will be about 7 feet from the ground.

NEW THEATER TO BE GRAND AFFAIR

Capt. Young Accepts Plans for New Playhouse Upon His Ocean Pier.

SEATING CAPACITY CUT DOWN

Better Acoustic Properties Will Characterize Seashore City's New Playhouse. Stage Will Be Enlarged—Revival in Business Among the Merchants.

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau, Young's Ocean Pier.

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 20.

Plans for the cosy playhouse which is to supplant the present music hall on the ocean pier were today submitted to Capt. John L. Young, and his theatrical representative and approved. The architect is now open for bids. The theater is to cost about $60,000. The defects of the present structure, which has a seating capacity of 3,500, will be entirely overcome in the new affair and to accomplish that the seating capacity will be reduced by 1,500. The acoustics will be perfect and the 2,000 seats so arranged that one will have a clear view and hearing of everything that transpires upon the stage. The place is to be thoroughly up-to-date in every respect. The increased patronage of the pier, due largely to the accommodations of The Gazette bureau, also makes a reduction of the present house necessary. The stage can be increased without causing any inconvenience, but the house will have to be set back some, so as to give additional space in front.

The roof is to be 15 feet higher and there is to be a handsome horseshoe balcony divided into two parts with separate entrances and exits. Around the main floor will be pretty arches, curtained to kill the noise from the surf and aid in making the house thoroughly soundproof. A promenade will be arranged on either side of the house, which is designed to be warm in winter and cool in summer. There will be smoking rooms and other accommodations for the men and parlors with matron services for the ladies, and nurseries where the babies may be checked while their parents take in the performance.

Demolition of the present structure will commence in about two weeks and from then until the completion of the proposed building all performances will be given in the rear theater. The past season has demonstrated that it pays to have first-class attractions.

Mr. D'Esta has an excellent line of bookings for the coming winter season, among the attractions being Otis Skinner and Ada Rehan in "Taming of the Shrew;" John Drew and Virginia Harned in "Iris," Charles Warner in "Drink."

Revival in Business.

There was a revival of business and pleasure in the city yesterday and today. The storm scare has now completely faded away and strangers are again coming in by trainloads. The boardwalk was comfortably filled all day and the fashionable set, with its pretty fall dress and effects, had full sway. Thousands of people enjoyed a dip in the surf today and bathing was really better than at various times during the height of the season. The water was warm, and in fact it will be so for several weeks yet, as it takes about one month of cold weather to chill the ocean.

The air was cool, and weak and nervous persons were slightly uncomfortable when entering or leaving the water, but healthy persons suffered no ill effects, and report the open-air salt water bath as quite invigorating.

Still Cling to Hope.

There have been no further tidings from the fishing smack Red Dragon, which went down with its crew of five men in the recent storm. The relatives and friends of the two men still accounted for cling to that threadbare hope that the men might have been picked up by passing craft, but all others are convinced that these two also have perished in the waters.

Seashore Personalities.

Judge Robert E. Umbel and Mrs. Umbel of Uniontown are registered at the Marlborough.

Henry E. Baron, cashier of the Farmers National bank of Somerset, was one of the boardwalk promenaders today.

The Misses Bessie, Edith, Helen and Ruth Strasser departed for their home this morning. W. C. LITTLE.

THE DEATH ROLL

Lewis R. Phillips.

Lewis R. Phillips, aged 44 years, of North avenue and Linden street, Allegheny, the originator, it is said, of the newspaper route system on the North Side, and for years a well-known landscape and high-class sign painter, died at his home at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon of tuberculosis. He was a son of Richard Phillips, an old-time Allegonian, who died over 40 years ago, and was a brother of Phillips, an ex-baseball player. He was married 23 years ago to Miss Minnie E. Baer, an Allegheny girl, and is survived by her and two grown daughters, Misses Nellie and Grace, and one sister, Mrs. Elmer E. Herman, the wife of the undertaker of East Ohio street, and two brothers, Mary and Maj. Phillips. He was a member of the Trinity Lutheran church of Stockton avenue, Allegheny, and for years was a teacher in the Sabbath school there. He was a half-brother of John Dyson, deceased, an old-time foreman of the Pittsburgh Leader. He will be buried from the residence of his brother-in-law, E. E. Herman of Cedar avenue and First street, Allegheny, at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, the Rev. W. F. Schramm, his pastor, officiating. The interment will be made at Unlondale cemetery.

Mrs. Mary Ann Todd.

Mrs. Mary Ann Todd died suddenly at an early hour yesterday morning at the home of her son, Burgess T. R. Todd, in North Bellevernon, as the result of an apoplectic stroke. Mrs. Todd was in her eighty-fourth year, and had not been ill a day in the last 35 years. She was found lying at the foot of the stairs leading to her bedroom when the family arose. She was the daughter of William and Sarah Forgeson and was born in County Tyrone, Ireland, May 1, 1820. She came to this country in 1846, residing in Philadelphia for 10 years. On August 22, 1850, she married William Todd, and they came to Pittsburgh the same year. In 1877 her husband received injuries that caused his death, and Mrs. Todd since resided with her son, at whose home she died. She was for years a member of the old Fifth United Presbyterian church in Pittsburgh. She is survived by Fr. W. J. Todd of Baltimore, T. R. Todd of Bellevernon and S. H. Todd of Pittsburgh. Funeral services will be conducted at the home tomorrow evening by Revs. Perrin Baker and George S. Holmes, and the remains will be interred on Tuesday in the Allegheny cemetery beside those of her husband.

The Rev. Frank Steed.

The Rev. Frank Steed, pastor of the Episcopal church of the Nativity of Crafton, died early yesterday morning at the parish house, Crafton, after a brief illness. The death was a surprise to his parishioners. He was well-known and popular. The Rev. Mr. Steed had been pastor of the church for four years, and in that time built up a thriving parish. About a year ago his health began to fail, and in the early summer he took a trip to Europe. He returned to his work a few weeks ago considerably improved, but early last week he was taken ill. When Mr. Steed took charge of the Crafton parish it was a small church struggling for existence, and it was only by the most strenuous work that he brought it up to its present standard. Mr. Steed was 50 years old, and is survived by a widow and two sisters residing at Crafton.

Mrs. Eliza Jane Herron.

Eliza Jane Herron, widow of William Herron, died early yesterday morning at the residence of her son, No. 702 Fifth avenue extension, aged 78 years. The deceased had been ill for over seven months. She came to the country in 1804 from Ireland, where a few years before her husband died. She was born in Hillsboro, County Down, and was the mother of three children, all of whom survive her. They are George and Susan of No. 702 Fifth avenue extension, and John Henry of Belfast, Ireland. After coming to Pittsburgh Mrs. Herron joined the Hamilton Avenue United Presbyterian church. The funeral service will be held at the Fifth avenue residence Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and the interment will take place at the Homewood cemetery.

Joseph Brain.

Joseph Brain, one of the best known citizens of New Brighton, died yesterday after a month's illness. He was 70 years old and was born in England, but lived in New Brighton many years. He is the last member of a family of 13 children. For many years he was connected with his brother, the late John Brain, in coal mining interests, but retired a few years ago. He is survived by three children, Misses Josephine and Agnes at home and Joseph Brain, Jr., of Summitville, Ind. Funeral services will be conducted from St. Joseph's church this place, Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

CONGRESSMAN IS MIXED IN MUDDLE

Indicted Postoffice Official Says He Will Furnish the Information.

SHOULD ALSO BE INDICTED

Records of Several High Government Employes Will Be Carefully Overhauled by Federal Grand Jury—Several Additional Cases Pending.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The storm center of the great postoffice scandal has shifted, politically, to the San Francisco postoffice. One of the indicted former officials of the postoffice department made the startling statement today that at his trial, which will come up shortly, he would name a former congressman "who should have been indicted together with the others who have been indicted." The former official who made this statement had the most intimate relations with this member of congress for years.

The arrest of State Senator Green of New York on the serious charge of bribery and conspiracy with George W. Beavers has again brought up prominently the question, did Beavers and Machen act autocratically in the matter of making big contracts, or did they consult with the higher officials? The four-year contract with the Bundy Time Clock Company was made when J. W. Johnson of New Jersey was first assistant postmaster general.

The point has often been made at the postoffice department that the amount of business was such that it was "impossible" for the first assistant postmaster general to scrutinize every document placed before him for signature or approval. The contract with the Bundy Time Clock Company, it has been stated, was arranged by letter, when John M. Masten, the chief clerk of Johnson, was "acting first assistant postmaster general."

The Washington grand jury is to meet again tomorrow and will get further evidence on some new indictments. The matter to be brought up harks back to the "get-rich-quick" scandal cases, and it is said that indictments will be brought this time against some former officials of the department and some outside parties, or go-betweens. There is a report, however, that the Beavers cases have not been exhausted before the grand jury and that some other New Yorkers are to answer this week, either as willing witnesses or defendants.

The inspectors and the grand jury here now have before them, so far as can be learned tonight, these cases:

A New York postoffice employe who was mixed up in the advertisement of a certain kind of mail box.

A former official of the department, against whom a case is pending for conspiracy and accepting part of bribes.

A New York employe who is said to have placed certain stocks which were given in a bribe by a postal detective company.

An outsider charged with getting a "rake-off" on a contract for over $100,000, made at the department here, which has not yet been referred to specifically.

A postoffice official here who has been charged with attempting to extort money for giving an employe preferment.

A station agent in Washington who was mixed up in a shady contract now under investigation.

CHAMBERLAIN IS READY FOR FIGHT

Former British Colonial Secretary Marshals His Extensive Forces.

NO QUARTER WILL BE GIVEN

Closer Union With the Colonies by Means of Preferential Tariffs the Keystone of His Arch—Has Now No Leader to Restrain Him.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

LONDON, Sept. 20.—Former Secretary for the Colonies Joseph Chamberlain means fight, and unless all signs fail, Great Britain is to be privileged to see within a short time one of the most remarkable political campaigns she has enjoyed for many decades.

By leaving the cabinet Mr. Chamberlain, his friends say, has placed himself in a position where he commands in considerable measure the situation so far as deciding on the time when an appeal shall be made to the country. If he and his followers in the house of commons act with the Balfour ministry it may remain in power for some time. When, however, Mr. Chamberlain considers that the time is ripe to go to the country there is little doubt that he can force a dissolution of parliament.

Already Mr. Chamberlain has been in conference with many of his leading supporters and the groundwork for a plan of campaign which will cover every nook and corner in the United Kingdom has been laid.

Not one particle of his original plan does he abandon. First stands a closer union with the colonies by means of preferential tariffs and an endeavor to make the empire self-sufficing as regards food supply. Second stands the employment of the tariff to secure reciprocity, and failing that, retaliation. In a word, Mr. Chamberlain means fight, and British politics never had a more alert, unsparing, or even bitter fighter than he. With Mr. Chamberlain every man who is not an avowed friend is an enemy to be hit above or below the belt, and for the first time in his career Mr. Chamberlain has no compeer and much less a leader to restrain his zeal.

The Conservative party is pretty badly split. It consists of four distinct camps. First the retaliators, under Mr. Balfour; second, the preferentialists, under Mr. Chamberlain; third, the free traders, under Lord Goschen, Sir Michael Hicks-Beach and Mr. Ritchie; fourth, the wobblers, under nobody in particular. The retaliators and preferentialists together make up about three-fourths of the party.

Mr. Chamberlain is confident that all but an insignificant section of these will come under his banner. So soon as he makes clear his plans, which involve no increase but merely a readjustment of the present food taxes, so soon also will the Chamberlainite candidates in the constituencies, up and down the country, prepare to fight every man of whatever political hue who does not fly the Chamberlain colors.

Mr. Chamberlain may be all wrong and his policy may be doomed to ignominious collapse under the cry of "the cheap loaf in danger," but it will take actual defeat and more than one defeat to put him out of politics. His well planned organization has ample funds and the pick of the brains of the rank and file of the Unionist party. The outlook for the liveliest kind of a time in British politics is most encouraging.

Lord Balfour of Burleigh, secretary for Scotland, and Arthur Ralph Douglas Elliot, financial secretary to the treasury, have resigned and their resignations have been accepted by the King. Mr. Elliot was not in the cabinet. These two resignations make a total of four vacant cabinet posts, and one secretaryship at Mr. Balfour's disposition.

KILLED BY POLO BALL.

Millionaire Swift's Son Died as Result of Injuries Received in Game.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Nathan Swift, son of Louis F. Swift, the packer, died today from the effects of a blow on the temple with a polo ball at Onwentsia field during a game. The accident was at first thought to be trifling. Mr. Swift was playing in a contest in which his companions were Frederic McLaughlin, W. W. Rathbone, Walter Farwell, Sidney Love, Walter Keith, R. R. McCormick and Charles Garfield King.

The ball which struck Mr. Swift, was one that went high in the air and from the mallet of Mr. Love. Mr. Swift did not appreciate his danger until too late, the glare of the sun preventing him from following the ball in its flight. When the ball hit him he did not fall from his saddle, and when his companions galloped to his side, he was at first inclined to make light of the injury. Arriving at home, he complained of dizziness, and later he went into a delirium, which was followed by his death.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 20.—Thirty-one Filipinos, who arrived here last Thursday on the transport Sherman, where they were to be employed in the construction of the Filipino houses and other buildings at the exposition, are detained on board the transport by the immigration authorities because they are apparently liable to become public charges. They are all in poor financial straits.

FEW EXPORTS GO ACROSS TO TURKEY

Balance of Trade Is Largely Against United States With Sultan's Country.

COMMERCE IS $23,000,000

Exports, Small in Amount, Consist of Cotton Manufactures, Agricultural Implements and Iron and Steel Products, With Some Breadstuffs and Oil.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Room 10, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20.

Commerce between the United States and Turkey amounts to $4,000,000 piasters annually. This seems like a very considerably sum, but its apparent magnitude is somewhat reduced by the matter-of-fact announcement of the department of commerce and labor, through its bureau of statistics, that a piaster is only 4½ cents in value (or to be more accurate, 4.4 cents). These are the figures of the Turkish government. Reduced to United States currency, they give a total value of a little more than $2,000,000. The figures of the bureau of statistics, however, state our total commerce with Turkey last year at about $6,000,000 with Turkey in Europe and about $5,000,000 with Turkey in Asia. If that of Turkey's dependency in Africa—Egypt—were included, the total would be about $23,000,000, but the figures of the Turkish government, regarding its foreign commerce, do not include that of Egypt.

It is not surprising, however, that the figures of Turkey and those of the United States do not agree regarding the commerce between the two countries, since the routes of transportation between the two countries are in most cases across other countries, and thus render difficult any accurate presentation of the real value of the commerce passing between them.

Turkey is one of the countries with which our commerce consists principally of imports. While the total commerce with Turkey in Europe last year was over $6,000,000, only $496,785 of that sum was exports, and $5,672,578 was imports. With Turkey in Asia the commerce of last year was over $5,000,000, but of this sum only $276,247 was exports and $4,807,428 was imports. If we consider Egypt as a part of Turkey, the total would be considerably enlarged, though still with a heavy balance of trade against the United States, as the figures of our commerce show our total exports to Egypt last year to be $470,375, and the total imports from Egypt $10,661,978. The bureau of statistics, it is proper to say, classifies Egypt as a part of Turkey, under the title of "Turkey in Africa."

Including all of the possessions of Turkey, our total commerce with it last year was, in round terms $23,000,000, of which $1,813,107 was exports and $21,853,-453 imports. Of the total exports to Turkish territory, $496,785 was to Turkey in Europe, $276,247 to Turkey in Asia, and $740,375 to Turkey in Africa, or Egypt. Of the total imports from Turkish territory, $5,672,578 was from Turkey in Europe, $4,897,428 from Turkey in Asia, and $10,661,978 from Turkey in Africa, or Egypt.

Of the exports to Turkey in Europe in 1902 (the detailed figures of 1903 are not yet available), $165,000 was cotton manufactures, $111,735 provisions, $67,257 agricultural implements, and $83,208 manufactures of iron and steel. Of the exports to Turkey in Asia in 1902, manufactures of iron and steel amounted to $84,489; cotton manufactures, $48,145, and agricultural implements, $13,440. To Turkey in Africa, breadstuffs exported amounted to $971,557; iron and steel manufactures, $69,808; mineral oil, $85,845, and cotton manufactures, $24,237. Of the imports from Turkish territory, the principal from Turkey in Europe were rugs and carpets, $2,253,288; tobacco, $840,874; hides and skins (chiefly goatskins), $812,218; oils, $206,202, and wool, $187,708. From Turkey in Asia licorice root was the largest item, $937,287; wool, $576,273; opium, $401,113; figs, $363,678; dates, $213,608, and raisins, $136,227. From Turkey in Africa—Egypt—cotton amounted to $9,525,833; sugar, $1,351,038; and gum arabic, $206,196.

The following table shows the commerce between the United States and Turkish territory in the year ending June 30, 1903:

	Imports from.	Exports to.
Turkey in Europe	$ 5,672,578	$496,785
Turkey in Asia	4,807,428	276,247
Turkey in Africa	10,795,502	740,375

MUST HAVE FREEDOM.

Gathering of Irish on Anniversary of Emmett's Death Adopt Strong Resolutions.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—At the auditorium tonight a meeting under the auspices of the United Irish Societies of Chicago, adopted resolutions declaring that no settlement of the Irish question short of national independence will satisfy the aspirations of the Irish people. The occasion for the gathering was the one hundredth anniversary of the execution of Robert Emmett.

The resolutions add: "While we recognize in the land bill, which has recently become law, a substantial concession to the just demands of the Irish people, we do not regard it as either a settlement or a compromise of the Irish question. We urge the leaders of the United Irish league to take up with vigor and increased activity the movement to secure legislative independence which we hold to be of greater importance than the settlements of the land question."

The speakers at the meeting included Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Rabbi Hirsch, Judge Marcus Kavanagh and the Hon. John F. Finnerty.

ITALIANS WERE ENTHUSIASTIC

Thirty-third Anniversary of Garibaldi's Triumph Was Celebrated by Countrymen.

PARADE TO BE HELD LATER

Native Orator Compares the Holiday to the Realization of a Promise Given by God to the Italian People—Praise for America.

The Italians of Pittsburgh last night celebrated the 33d anniversary of Garibaldi's triumphal entry into Rome. It was a holiday throughout the Italian colony of the city, and irrespective of religion, every patriotic son of Italy observed the natal day of Italian independence. On Thursday the Italian societies of Allegheny county will hold a celebration and participate in a parade through the principal downtown thoroughfares.

In the chappel of the old Third Presbyterian church building in Sixth avenue over 200 Protestant Italians gathered last night. The little hall had been gaily decorated with flags and bunting and illuminated with scores of Chinese lanterns, everywhere the national colors of America and United Italy being entwined. Flowers and palms were mounted high on the pulpit. The Italians came in their holiday attire and whole families attended.

The principal speaker was John D. Fortunato, an Italian evangelist well known in Pittsburgh. The Rev. Dr. J. T. McCrory, pastor of the Third United Presbyterian church; A. T. Gillitto, an officer of the Garibaldi guards, and Miss Jennie Bryan made addresses in a patriotic vein.

Mr. Fortunato is a finished orator and his address carried his hearers up to a high pitch of enthusiasm. Beside the platform stood two members of the Garibaldi guards in full uniform protecting the banner of United Italy. Close by was a picture of the meeting between the patriot leader and Victor Emmanuel, with the legend: "Here we are; here we shall stay—one Rome or death." Beside the speakers' table was a picture of the lamented Queen Margaret. Every reference to her by the native orators brought tears to the eyes of her former subjects.

After recalling the stirring scene of 33 years ago, when on September 20, 1870, the troops of Victor Emmanuel took possession of the Eternal City in response to the clamorous demands of its populace, Mr. Fortunato said:

"Today we see the realization of God's promise to one people. We see our beloved Italy one strong, united country—proud of her freedom and respected throughout the world for her dignity. God gave the gospel to his disciples and they have carried his message of mercy to the uttermost corners of the earth. God gave Italy her freedom and here on the western shore, where Columbus anchored his caravels—here in the noble land of Washington and Lincoln have we been enabled to carry the freedom of Italy and transplant it in the midst of the world's youngest and most prosperous nation."

When Mr. Fortunato had concluded Dr. McCrory addressed the assemblage in English, recounting the gain which had been made for the well-being of the Italians by throwing off the yoke of the pope's temporal power in Rome. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Italian mission of the United Presbyterian church.

ESCAPED FROM JAIL AFTER WOUNDING JAILOR

Three Negroes Get Away from Kentucky Prison and Are Still at Large.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

FRANKFORT, KY., Sept. 20.—A daring jail delivery was accomplished here today. Squire Hibler, Clayton Day and Frank Chenault, negroes, awaiting sentence to prison terms for murder and robbery, made good their escape. To accomplish it Chenault split the head of Deputy Jailer Merritt Williams, with a bottle, seriously injuring him, and opened the doors for the others.

The negro, Hibler, was wearing the garb of the state prison, from which he had been removed to the jail to stand trial for the murder of a fellow-convict, and before leaving the jail he stole the citizen's suit of a fellow inmate and left his stripes behind. The alarm was given immediately following the escape and officials of the state prison and deputy sheriffs scoured the county today, without apprehending the prisoners. Hibler is a Louisville negro and Chenault and Day were sent up from Lexington.

ONE KILLED AND ONE HURT IN A BRIDGE ACCIDENT

Soldier Catching His Feet in Iron Work Followed by Fatal Results.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., Sept. 20.—John Delater had his head cut off and John Mannl was fatally injured this afternoon by an accident on the Bridge street bridge. Both were members of Company B, Second regiment, Michigan national guard, and were returning from rifle practice at Berlin, riding on a Muskegon interurban line combination baggage and passenger coach.

The soldiers were sitting in the doorway of the baggage compartment, swinging their feet when the car ran onto the bridge. Delater's feet caught on the iron work of the bridge and he was suddenly jerked from the doorway and thrown beneath the wheels of the car. He was decapitated. In falling, he clutched at Mannl and partially dragged him from the car. Mannl had one leg broken and received other injuries that will be fatal.

IBSEN'S HEALTH IS NOT IN SERIOUS CONDITION

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Mary Shaw, the actress, is in receipt of a letter from Heinrich Ibsen, the Danish dramatic writer, in response to a cablegram which Miss Shaw recently sent to him condoling him on his ill health. Mr. Ibsen in this letter accepts his correspondent's condolence, but adds that the reports that he is in ill health emanate from his enemies, the truth being that he is in better health than he has been for many months. Ibsen says also that he is at work on a new drama, which he hopes will take even higher rank than his "The Doll's House."

Campbell suggests to the women of Pittsburgh and the out-of-town exposition visitors that they see the broadcloths of this kind which are selling at $1 a yard at "The People's Store," and desires to furnish samples for comparison with the $1.25 broadcloths at other dress goods counters.

TRIBUTE TO DR. REID'S MEMORY

Services to the Late Divine Held In Church Where He Was Long the Pastor.

PANEGYRIC BY A PREACHER

The Rev. J. K. McClurkin of the Shadyside United Presbyterian Church Delivers Fine Sermon—Services for Late W. V. Sheriff.

A service in memory of the late Rev. William J. Reid, D. D., former pastor of the First United Presbyterian church, Pittsburgh, and a prominent divine in Western Pennsylvania, were held in his old church yesterday. The services were in charge of Dr. Reid's son, the Rev. William J. Reid, present pastor of the church, and the sermon was preached by the Rev. J. K. McClurkin, pastor of the Shadyside United Presbyterian church.

Dr. McClurkin's sermon was a panegyric to the late pastor and was listened to attentively by the large congregation, who all knew the beloved pastor in whose honor the services were held. The text for the sermon was taken from Revelation, 7:9, "I looked and behold a door was opened in heaven." Dr. McClurkin said in part:

The text is taken from a book which Dr. Reid loved, from which he spoke so often, and to understand the wonderful lessons of which he left in your homes a volume of 80 precious sermons. These words are chosen because the door in heaven was so recently opened for him. The circle of one brief year rushes us back to the day when he stepped quickly across into the Father's home. I ask you to stand today at the open door, and with your vision cleared by faith and your hearing made attentive by the Spirit, look and listen.

A new song is heard. The redeemed are singing it. "Thou wast slain and hast redeemed us to God by thy blood." The angels are adding to the glorious song. Their number is "ten thousand times ten thousand and thousands of thousands." This is their song. "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power and riches and wisdom and strength and honor and glory and blessing." Through this open door you can hear the anthem of praise deepen and grow stronger. Every creature in heaven and on the earth and under the earth and in the sea joins in this grand acclaim, "Blessing and honor and glory and power unto Him that sitteth on the throne and unto the Lamb forever."

We stand from our introduction. The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him, and the Holy Spirit is given that he may lead us into all truth. So you will agree with me that the impression of this Holy Spirit is the very essence of soul winning. It is wisdom's highest crown, so the first thing to be done in soul winning is to co-operate with the Holy Spirit to influence the spectacle to seek, the moral man urging men to believe in Christ when all the time his own life is one checkered piece of unbelief and hypocrisy. Can there be anything more demoralizing to a man's soul than such an inconsistent piece of performance?

There is no higher stumbling block in the way of sinners than the inconsistency of men urging others to become Christians when they themselves are not. Such a man can never conduct the flow of the grace of Jesus Christ to others, no matter how earnest or enthusiastic in search. My own mind any effort, unless we are followers of Christ ourselves, will result in stultification of ourselves and an offense and blasphemy against God.

THE OBEDIENCE THAT BRINGS A BENEDICTION

Sermon by the Rev. C. L. Thurgood in the Central Christian Church.

In the Central Christian church, Colwell and Pride streets, last night, the pastor, the Rev. C. L. Thurgood, preached a sermon on "The Obedience That Brings a Benediction." His text was from Matthew, iii., 15: "Suffer it now, for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." Mr. Thurgood said in part:

There are thousands of persons who believe in Jesus as the Messiah, in Jesus of Nazareth as the savior of the world, but who stop short of that full, prompt, loyal obedience to Jesus as Lord, Master or Employer they shrink back from so doing. Why these people should be in a class with the demons of whom Jesus has said: "Then believest that God is one; thou doest well; the demons also believe and shudder," is a constant wonder.

Thousands of children will come to them for the bread and life spread of the pantry, yet how surprised they would be if these children who get the good gifts of the home were to refuse them obedience. If order is heaven's first law, obedience is indeed the second. The first public act of Jesus in his ministry was that of obedience. His heavenly Father had given John the Baptist a commission to baptize all who came penitent to Jordan's banks. He who needed no penitence came also. He who was to be the way, the path, the road, the example of all examples, came also that he might show his obedience to His heavenly Father.

NEW CATHOLIC CHURCH.

Arlington Heights German Residents to Form a Congregation.

Arlington Heights is to have a German Catholic church. At a meeting in the Bane school yesterday Frank Amrhein, Andrew Amrhein, Conrad Staab, Joseph Hafner, Joseph Gelbach, George Lanz, Herbert Nelson and Anthony Neumbacker, reported they had secured the signatures of 300 persons willing to support the new church.

To the above committee were added Jacob Weiland, Joseph Breidel, Joseph Frank, Walter Hules, Mick Ahorn, James Boyle and George Windhager and these gentlemen will endeavor to select a site. Many persons present yesterday favored the old "Fort" site, facing the head of the South Twenty-second street incline. This site is considered the best, but if it is thought it cannot be had, as the price is too high.

Another meeting will be called soon and it is thought by that time all arrangements can be completed.

KNOXVILLE CHURCH DEDICATES ORGAN

The handsome new organ of the Knoxville Presbyterian church, of which the Rev. W. A. Jones is pastor, was formally dedicated at the services yesterday morning. The organ cost $3,000, of which Andrew Carnegie gave half. The balance was raised during the week of the church's dedication last summer. The organ was dedicated by the pastor and special musical services were held, conducted in the morning by Edward L. Snyder and in the evening by Carl Ritter.

Harvest Home at Carnegie Church.

The congregation of St. John's Evangelical Lutheran church, Highland avenue, Carnegie, celebrated its annual harvest home festival at the church yesterday morning and evening. The Lord's supper was celebrated in the church in the morning, in the German language. The evening services, at 7:30, were conducted in English. The pastor, the Rev. E. F. Dittmer, officiated at both ceremonies. The church was beautifully decorated, and large congregations attended both services.

Unique Church Service at Gladden.

"A Study in Diamonds" was the title of the unique service held yesterday at the Gladden Methodist Episcopal church, at Gladden station, near Bridgeville. The mission stations of the church in India were shown marked out by silver stars and the names of the missionaries at each station were given. The history of the Indian mission work was read and pictures of the missions and missionaries were exhibited. The service was held preparatory to rally day, which is September 27.

BETHEL'S ANNIVERSARY WAS QUIETLY CELEBRATED

REV. DR. CORNELIUS W. WYCOFF

The members of Bethel Presbyterian church in Bethel township yesterday observed the 125th anniversary of the founding of that ancient congregation. The Rev. Dr. C. W. Wycoff, pastor of the church, preached a historical sermon, but beyond this there was no demonstration recalling the importance of the event in the church annals of Western Pennsylvania.

Bethel church was founded by the Rev. Dr. John McMillan and the Rev. John Clark on September 19, 1778. It was the first church in the Pittsburgh presbytery and figured prominently in the whisky insurrection in 1794. In 1878 the centenary anniversary was celebrated in good old-fashioned country style by Dr. Wycoff's flock. At that time the congregation was in the heyday of its glory, being composed of well-to-do farmers who had descended from the pious Scotch-Irish settlers. During the last 25 years, however, many of the old families have moved away and the trustees decided that the 125th anniversary could not be celebrated with a jubilee. Dr. Wycoff is the fourth pastor of the congregation and has filled the pulpit over 30 years.

CELEBRATION OF THE HEBREW NEW YEAR'S DAY

Jewish Religious Festivals in the Month of Tisri Begin at Sunset Today.

Hebrews the world over tonight at sunset will begin the celebration of Rosh Hashana, the Jewish New Year. According to the Hebrew calendar, which is based on the creation of the world, this is the five thousand six hundred and sixty-fourth year. Rosh Hashana festival is based on the scriptural teaching, the twenty-fourth verse of chapter xxiii of Leviticus, bidding, "Moses speak unto the children of Israel, saying in the seventh month, Tisri, shall ye have a Sabbath memorial or the trumpets."

From the above quotation the Hebrews believe that Tuesday, September 22, is the first day of the year, and the blowing of the trumpets signifies it is a day of judgment. The celebration, however begins with the setting of tonight's sun. On New Year's day the future of each individual is recorded, and 10 days later, Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, his fate is sealed.

With this solemn thought impressed upon their minds the Hebrews proceed to their various places of worship and pray for the remission of their sins. Appropriate synagogue services will mark the advent of the coming Hebrew New Year. At the following local synagogues special services will be held: The Shuroh Torah synagogue, Rabbi M. S. Sivitz will officiate; Bas Hamedrash Hagodai, on Washington street, Rabbi A. A. Ashinsky; the Tree of Life synagogue, Fourth avenue and Ross street, Rabbi Fried; the Beth Jacob synagogue, Franklin and Townsend streets; the Tipereth Zion society, Center avenue, and the temple of the Reform Congregation Rodeph Shalom, Eighth street, Rabbi J. Leonard Levy.

On Rosh Hashana, which lasts two days, the most stringent rules are obeyed, and it is only exceeded as a holiday for prayer by Yom Kippur, which follows 10 days later. On this day not a morsel of food or a drop of water is tasted. The fast lasts 25 consecutive hours. Five days after their New Year's the Jews celebrate the Feast of the Tabernacles, the Hebrew Thanksgiving.

NEW CHURCH FORMED IN NORTH BRADDOCK

A new English Lutheran church was established yesterday in Bessemer terrace, North Braddock, which is the third church within the limits of the borough. It is to be known as the "Hebron Lutheran church," and is a branch of the Alpha Lutheran church of Turtle Creek, of which the Rev. J. Elmer Bittle is pastor. The new congregation has 40 charter members and about 110 more persons will join. The Rev. Bittle and the Rev. J. W. Poffinberger of Vandergrift have had the charge of organizing the congregation. The good-by friends to erect a chapel this fall at Main and Franklin streets. The officers of the church are: Elders, Thomas Kruse and William Wunderlich; deacons, A. C. Kuehn, John Funk and A. G. Bakestraw.

FIRST MILESTONE OF CHURCH IS REACHED

The Rev. A. C. Dieffenbach, the Pastor, Preaches on "One Year's Work and Another."

The first anniversary of the Reformed Church of the Ascension, Allegheny, was celebrated yesterday. In the morning the pastor, the Rev. A. C. Dieffenbach, preached a sermon on "One Year's Work and Another." The congregation is building a handsome new edifice, to cost $25,000, the foundation for which is about finished. In his sermon yesterday, Mr. Dieffenbach said in part:

Evidences of material progress and of numerical growth in the church which surround the pastor, the Reformed Church, are of great interest among a majority of people. But it is the secondary function of the church to erect beautiful temples, pay good salaries and swell the membership roll. It is more desirable to worship God in the midst of poverty, or, indeed, under the blue dome of heaven, and have prayer and praise resplendent with the beauty of consecration than vain gloriously to sit in soft places and feel proud of the accomplishment of cash.

It were better also to labor with the inspiriting power of God among a few of the faithful than with much organization and little love to be a vast army merely on weekly or monthly reports. The church must be small and the spirit of Christian fellowship strong, or the number may be great and the fellowship weak. If the church is to be successful it must be otherwise as to be ambitious for numbers, then it will have missed the message of the Master, and will probably never be either numerous or full of good works.

The ruling passion of a congregation, as of an individual, should be as nearly that of Jesus Christ as it is possible to conceive and attain unto. When a church is dividing the silly tooting, the sheep stealing, or the apostolic union because in that day it was a proud title to be called a Christian. Now there is a vaguely arms who delight in the solicitations of the clergy-inviters to rent of what denomination—and with not altogether unjustified conceit retail the pleas that are uttered. Let us raise the standard of church membership, the good Lord deliver us from the abominable proselytism—let us demand of each satisfactory evidence of their God-ward conduct and spiritual-mindedness before we will be no question of the restoration of the church, and then there will be none of that damnable silence to the church, the contamination of which by a false estimate, forgetting and dishonored by a useless and shameless life.

For this people mindful of the "human life of God," and of the divine life of man, there must be a joyous, enthusiastic struggle in the kingdom, filled with consistency in every thing except timeliness of character, and fruitful in the fruits of that God-likeness which is the end of life and the flower of our universal hope.

LUTHERANS' SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

The annual convention of the Allegheny County Lutheran Sunday School Association will be held tonight in the First English Lutheran church, Hamilton avenue, Pittsburgh. The convention will have delegates from every church of the denomination in Allegheny county, 50 in number. The services will be in charge of the Rev. W. Ira Guss of Duquesne. The Rev. William J. Bucher of Braddock will read a paper on "How Can the Habit of Church Attendance be Cultivated in Sunday Scholars?" and a conference on "How to Make Sunday School Attractive" will be led by the Rev. J. Elmer Bittle of Turtle Creek.

HONEST EMPLOYE DISCOVERS PLOT

Lynn, Mass., Trolley Company the Victim of Janitor's Conspiracy.

FIND $4,000 WORTH OF CHECKS

Janitor and Conductor Arrested—Scores of Men in Boston and Lynn Involved in Great Scheme to Get Rich at the Expense of a Corporation.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BOSTON, Sept. 20.—Developments today in the Boston and Northern street railway ticket frauds, in which five conductors and two printers were arrested yesterday, showed that besides the wholesale scheme of counterfeiting transfers by which the company claims to have lost $200,000, another very similar fraud was being carried on in Lynn by Herbert J. Sherman, janitor of the company's main office, who stole coupons supposed to have been destroyed and sold them to conductors. Over $2,000 worth of these checks were found in Sherman's house when he was arrested today and a large number was also found in possession of Herbert Morris, a conductor, who was also arrested.

Sherman says he has been selling checks to more than a dozen conductors, and that after he hit upon a plan of defrauding the company the conductors were so anxious to secure the checks that he was tempted to steal and sell them.

Scores of arrests of conductors, both in Boston and Lynn, are expected within 24 hours in connection with the frauds. President Sullivan of the Boston and Northern company stated tonight that the company could have prevented the use of spurious checks at any time, but were anxious to find the printers. The checks used have been changed several times during the past few years, but the counterfeiters succeeded in having each new plate duplicated within a few days after the new checks appeared.

The police and the Pinkertons have been busy all day bringing conductors to police headquarters for examination. Seven arrests had been made up to tonight, including the Morris brothers, the Tremont row printers charged with making the counterfeits.

An honest conductor led to the discovery of Sherman's scheme. Sherman was passed on a conductor's ticket, and a few minutes later offered to sell the man in charge of the car $2 worth of checks. The conductor purchased them, reported the matter at the company's office and Sherman's identity was discovered through his pass number.

About 400 players, including two grand ballets, are seen during the performance, and the costumes and scenic effects are fine. The seat sale for the entire two weeks will begin Thursday morning.

TILLMAN TRIAL DRAWS CROWDS

South Carolina Fire Eater Is Anxious to End His Imprisonment.

TRIED FOR KILLING AN EDITOR

Nine Lawyers Engaged by the South Carolina Politician, Who Has Been in Jail Ever Since He Shot Narciso Gonzales, and Is Hoping for Acquittal.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

LEXINGTON, S. C., Sept. 20.—The little town of Lexington has never before seen such a crowd as is here at present. The occasion for the rush is the trial of Lieutenant Governor James H. Tillman for the killing of Editor Narciso Gonzales, which occurred last January. At the first term of court when the trial might have been heard, the defense sought and secured a continuance because of absent witnesses. At the following term a change of venue was asked because of alleged feeling against Tillman at Columbia, the home of Editor Gonzales. Judge Townsend granted the change of venue, which operated as another delay. Tillman sought bail, which was refused, and he has been continuously in jail since the killing. He is impatient to be tried, as he believes he will be acquitted, or at least get a mis-trial, which will give him a chance to get bail.

There seems to be a belief that the case will not be tried at the present term of court, which begins tomorrow. All the lawyers talk confidently about the case coming up at this term, yet many believe something will happen to postpone. The hotels are crowded here with counsel and witnesses and interested parties are here in force.

The defense has nine lawyers actively engaged and the prosecution has four, who will assist the state solicitor, Judge Gary, who will hear the case, is here. The present program is for Tillman to be arraigned tomorrow afternoon. Solicitor Thurmond will, after the arraignment of the prisoners, ask the court to set a day for the beginning of the trial, and will suggest some early day which he will decide upon tomorrow. Counsel will then be heard as to the fixing of the day and Judge Gary will fix the time. Both sides seem intent on having the case tried at the present term of court.

Conductor Caroline E. Nichols certainly brings marvelous beauties out of the 50 orchestral instruments handled by the FADETTES. They play at the EXPO tonight, and are attracting "star" audiences.

CRYING BABY CHRISTENED IN DEN OF SNARLING LIONS

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—In the center of a cordon of snarling lions at Bostock's, Coney Island, this afternoon, the christening of the three weeks' old baby of Harry Tudor of Coney Island took place. The crying of the child seemed to enrage the beasts and the trainer had to put his powers to a supreme test to control them while the strange jungle christening was going on.

Captain Bonavita drove 27 lions into the arena. They were in a particularly ugly mood and for 26 minutes it was a question whether the christening would be possible. Peter the Great made a rush at the trainer, and was only subdued after a severe lashing.

As Mme. Morella, with the baby in her arms, entered, the band played "America" and the great crowd, thrilled by the spectacle, joined in the chorus. The baby was dressed in a long gown made of a combination of American and English flags.

Just as Captain Bonavita stepped forward to officiate at the christening, the baby started to cry and this seemed to have a strange effect upon the lions. Peter the Great and a big lioness jumped from their pedestals. By this time the lions were roaring in chorus and among the spectators a panic was barely averted. Two women, overcome by the spectacle, fainted and were carried out. The baby was christened Isia.

INK AN AGENCY FOR GOOD OR EVIL

No Power Is Comparable to That of the Printing Press, Says Dr. Rees.

PEN TO FIGHT ALL BATTLES

Bayonet, Sword and Gun Will Be Useless in the Future—Great Is the Influence of Books Either for Good or for Evil.

The Rev. Dr. W. H. W. Rees, pastor of the Smithfield Street Methodist Episcopal church, preached a sermon in his church last night on "The Ink Devil." His text was taken from Ecclesiastes x:1: "Dead flies cause the ointment of the apothecary to send forth a stinking savor." Dr. Rees said in part:

The press is the pot of precious ointment. Kept pure it is as fragrant as a garden of roses. What a power resides in it! Its power of a sun and shower to produce a harvest. Its power if bad, to mildew and blight a harvest. It can heal, or it can destroy. It can kill, or it can make alive. Did you ever set a book up before you and take its measure? Six by eight by two. That is the smallest part of it. Centuries have combined to produce that book. Battles have been lost and won. Great deeds and great murders. All the schools and universities and civilizations have combined to make this book.

A monk, in the 14th century, put nitre, charcoal and sulphur together, and gunpowder was the result. A century later—at Strasburg—John Gutenberg carved movable types out of blocks of wood and civilization came into possession of its mightiest civilizing agency.

We ought to thank God for books. Good books. Books of poetry and philosophy; books of history and nature; books of men and this glorious old book given us of God. There is no agency for good or evil comparable to the printing press. The mightiest engine

DECLINE IN STEEL COMMON FEATURE OF THE MARKET

Unfounded Apprehension on Public's Part Is Responsible for Slump in Dividend Earning Security—Consequences Are Serious.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, Sept. 21.

The Herald this morning says: Wall street had much of an adverse nature to contend with during the week, and in consequence it is not surprising that the interval should have witnessed the resumption of a clearly defined liquidation movement. At the outset opinions were divided as to the character of the trading. To the majority of observers, the selling movement appeared of a professional nature, engineered by traders who, having wearied of apathetic conditions, and realizing the hopelessness of working up enthusiasm in a market from which the public has vanished, seized upon bad news to work reactions. Possibly Wall street would have continued to hold this view until the last had not the reports of semi-demoralized conditions in Pittsburgh, the home of the iron and steel industry, the seat also of very extensive local promotions and extravagant speculation in the past, served to explain some important part of the mysterious enforced selling of United States Steel common stock.

Attention has been repeatedly called to the fact that the operation of transforming floating into fixed capital through extensive company promotions was not confined to New York and the Atlantic seaboard cities, but had been conducted on a very extensive scale in numerous interior cities. Stock exchanges have multiplied amazingly in recent years in small cities.

Promoters in Inland Cities.

Each has had its promoters and underwriters and speculators. Brewing concerns, electric lighting and traction plants, water companies and local industries, formerly operated as private enterprises or small corporations, have been combined and capitalized, and the shares turned out into small markets for speculative purposes. The concerns thus created have supplied their batch of undigested and indigestible securities, and whatever the merits of the enterprises, the shares have but a narrow market. When a money pinch or any other circumstance develops which necessitates the banks of these places providing themselves with funds, the holders of the local and unmarketable shares are compelled to sell the better or saleable stocks on the broader markets of New York or the east.

Something of the kind appears to have developed in Pittsburgh, with a resultant depression in the New York market, just as in the recent past weakness in Toronto developed reaction in Boston and New York, and more recently still, though probably not so clearly defined, threatening conditions in Baltimore and Richmond influenced a spasm in New York. Security markets everywhere are interested, and the weakening of one has even a sympathetic effect on others. In the end it makes very little difference whether the decline in United States Steel stocks uncovered the sore spot in Pittsburgh, or whether the weakness arising from some other cause necessitated the selling of steel shares and forced their depression in New York.

Influencing Factor the Same.

Whichever way it is put, the influencing factor is the same; capital has been tied up in promotions and speculations, and the credit of some individuals or corporations was strained. Stocks may have been thrown out of banks, as is estimated, or individuals have sold of their own volition, but in either event it was to provide funds and ease tension.

It will be fortunate if the experiences of operators in the Pittsburgh market are not repeated at other places, for that city has not been alone among those of the interior which have engaged in extensive promotions and inordinate speculation. Still, Pittsburgh may be an extreme case, for into the laps of its bankers and merchants more money, proportionately, was poured out in the various iron and steel promotions since 1898 and culminating in the flotation of United States Steel Corporation, than to any other city in the country. Its captains of industry developed a remarkable faculty for underwritings and promotion schemes. The names of some of them went down for huge sums on every syndicate contract afloat in the country. They remain there still, with the painful necessity now for the signers to chip in a little more money from time to time as a percentage of participation is called or an assessment levied on some languishing enterprise. Under the circumstances it is not strange that when liquidation was resumed it started in iron and steel and railway equipment shares, and that a storm center should have developed in the vicinity of Pittsburgh.

The Disquieting Feature.

Unquestionably the most disquieting development of the week was the continued depression of the common stock of the United States Steel Corporation. Confidence, already disturbed by other developments, was disturbed the more by the inability of the public to explain by any known developments the reason for the increasing decline and the low price of $17 a share to which the stock was depressed. That the boom in the iron trade has come to an end is admitted by such authorities as Mr. Swank of the American Iron and Steel association; that the trade has been affected by rumors of strikes in the building trades, the higher cost of labor and material and the like is now generally acknowledged, as is also the fact that orders for finished product are not as liberally placed as a year ago. On the other hand, however, the Iron Age maintains that "The large production of pig iron has not been accompanied by a heavy increase of iron unsold," and the reduction of the prices of finished steel products have not been considerable. In other words, while the business is easing down, a feature which will develop on other lines later on, profits as yet, according to the authorities, have not gone on rapidly enough, in themselves, to account for the ruinous decline in the price of steel stocks.

Corporation Is Handicapped.

Of course, the Steel Corporation has to contend with a gigantic capitalization, and that, under its new organization, has never been tested in times of adversity. It has to contend also with the popular fetish that a relaxation in the price of iron and steel is the necessary and infallible precursor of a period of business depression.

In view of the magnitude of the concern and the fact that its shares are widely distributed in the hands of innocent holders, it is only fair that attention should be directed to every favorable feature in the industrial experiment, to prevent, if there is no necessity for it, what may prove a needless sacrifice of security holdings. While, therefore, the iron and steel industry is easing down, sight must not be lost of the fact that the great experiment cannot yet be pronounced a failure, even though the price at which its stock is selling is disturbing.

The Steel Corporation comprehends within itself ability to meet changed conditions possessed by no other similar concern on earth. Whatever mistakes have been made in capitalization or in the unfortunate blunder of converting its preferred stock into bonds, no one can doubt that the concern has been honestly and ably managed and that it opposed an inordinate advance in prices when it could have obtained it. It is not conceivable that its report of earnings can, with the knowledge of the management, be other than honest, and that it possesses the surplus of $125,000,000 which it reported.

The hopeful view of the iron and steel industry under changed conditions is well worthy of consideration in Wall street. As presented by Mr. Swank, it is as follows:

View of an Expert.

"It is an error to assume that the end of the boom means an end of prosperity for the iron trade. Consumption still continues at an enormous rate. Few works have been closed by a lessened demand for their products, and prices are simply being adjusted to normal conditions. The remainder of this year promises to be a busy period for nearly all our iron and steel manufacturers and for those who furnish the raw materials. Last year we imported more than 1,000,000 tons of iron and steel because our own manufacturers could not for various reasons supply the demand. We are now able to meet our iron and steel wants. In this fact alone is great encouragement. Our imports of iron and steel should not rapidly decline and our exports should increase."

To hold stock in a company of huge capitalization—over-capitalization probably—is not agreeable, but the Steel Corporation thus far has earned its dividends on its stock. To be associated with an untested industrial experiment, when it shows an unfavorable tendency, is also not to the liking of any man who has money at stake, but it is possible that the decline in the steel shares may in the end turn out to be due not to any serious fundamental weakness in the corporation, or even to decreased earnings due to decreased business, but merely to the over-extended condition of a group of operators who have been forced to part with their holdings to protect other ventures.

A Depressing Influence.

If Wall street could be definitely assured that the chief cause of the decline the steel shares arose from conditions as above outlined, over-speculation without other than unfavorable developments within a great burden would be lifted from the street. Nothing throughout the trying 12 months of liquidation has had a more depressing influence on the market than the steady bearing down of these securities, which are in the hands of so many persons of slender means, entirely ignorant of the pitfalls of a speculative market. No disposition is manifested anywhere for new ventures while the situation continues, and in fact, one of the causes assigned for the failure of the shareholders of the Consolidated Lake Superior Company to raise the $5,000,000 necessary to protect a $30,000,000 investment in their $100,000,000 corporation, is the collapse of the steel shares. "If steel common sells at $17 a share," one of those interested is reported as saying, "what's the use of our putting up more money in Consolidated Lake Superior?"

WEEKLY REVIEW OF MARKET PRICES

Clover Hay Quotations Higher. Flour Was Unsettled, but Selling Figures Unchanged.

Since the first of the week just past there has been little change in conditions which have governed the hay market, the situation being steady, with receipts only fair, and prices have been firmly maintained. Timothy is held at the same figures that ruled a week ago. Clover hay has taken on a little additional strength, owing to light arrivals, and prices are 50 cents a ton higher. Oat and wheat straw are in limited supply, and quotations have moved forward half a dollar a ton. Oats are unchanged, with the market held firm by light receipts. But little car corn is arriving, and it is wanted. Shelled corn is coming forward freely, and the market is easy as quoted. Rye is steady at a slight advance.

Uncertain weather conditions in the west, where the weather has been changeable, have had the effect of unsettling the flour situation a trifle, and mills have allowed prices to fluctuate, an advance of 10 cents a barrel made early in the week having been lost on Friday, when quotations came to where they had been at the opening on Monday. Scarcely a ripple has appeared upon the surface of local trade, however, the demand being excellent, and jobbers have maintained selling figures without deviation from quotations. Flour goes out to customers at least as fast as it can be gotten in, and at times demand is ahead of supply. Wholesalers who allowed consignments a week ago have withdrawn them, and are adhering to list prices. Coffee has shown some improvement in primal markets, where green is higher, but the advance has not yet been sufficient to affect the roasted situation. Brazilians are holding stocks more firmly than for a long time, and claim that the crop has been over-estimated, while there are already rumors of crop damage to trees which will affect the next yield. Not much attention is paid to this, however, as it is too early to make predictions concerning the next crop, but the total of the present crop will fall below expectations. Sugar is unchanged, although the market has been unsteady for over a week, and some action has been expected. Demand is good, but heavy, and will aggregate a quantity considerably below the average for the summer season. Navy beans are strong as quoted. Cereals are holding firm at recent advances, and demand is good.

On Saturday there was a firmer condition of affairs prevalent in the produce market, as demand at the end of the week was brisk, and figures above quoted prices were obtained for some lots. This was only for the choice stock, however, and the list now ruling shows little change from the ruling quotations of the past few days. Corn has been the most plentiful vegetable upon the wholesale boom in the hot weather of the early part of last week, and have not reacted. Tomatoes are also in good supply, and have been unsteady in price. Potatoes are easy, as figures than prevailed a week ago, while sweets have held their own, with demand good. Home cucumbers are higher, having become scarcer. String beans are still coming freely, and prices are unchanged. Pears are hard to find, and prices are nearly unsalesable, for few are to be had. Lima beans are abundant, and are offering at exceedingly low figures.

Apples are selling freely, and prices for really desirable stock are firm, although some low figures are heard of for fruit that is not up to standard. Grapes are unchanged. Canteloupes are slightly higher, with not so many coming forward. Watermelons are unchanged. Bananas are higher, the storm-swept islands of Jamaica and Cuba having much less fruit to offer than expected.

Butter and eggs are quoted, and an advance this week would not be a surprise. Cheese and eggs have gone forward in price, and may go higher. The only change in poultry is an advance in live spring chickens, which are bringing a cent a pound more than prices of a week ago.

WILL DISCUSS FILTRATION.

Chamber of Commerce Is to Tackle Local Matters at Today's Meeting.

The chamber of commerce meets this afternoon and a large attendance is anticipated, as many matters of importance will come up for discussion. Among other things that will be talked over will be the $7,000,000 filtration proposition and plans for an independent railroad line along the Duquesne way wharf. The chamber of commerce was favorable to the original filtration plans when only about $3,000,000 was to have been expended, but it is probable the proposed expenditure of $7,000,000 will cause a spirited debate.

As this will be the last meeting of the chamber before the coming Ohio Valley improvement convention, the selection of delegates to the Evansville meeting will be an important matter for consideration. There will probably go five sent from the chamber, as well as several from the Coal exchange. This number will be but a small proportion of those who will attend, as most of the rivermen and many others have signified their intention of attending.

During the last few weeks Chairman Theodore E. Burton of the rivers and harbors committee of congress has been securing information regarding the Ohio river and its possible improvements. He has sent a comprehensive line of queries to many points along the river. The chamber of commerce, the Pittsburgh coal exchange and similar bodies in Cincinnati and Louisville, have already received these lists. They cover every phase of the river's improvement and the secretaries of the bodies are requested to submit the desired statistics.

SOCIALIST CONVENTION MOURNS AN ADHERENT

DRESDEN, Sept. 20.—(Special Cable.)—The Socialistic convention is in mourning today over the death of Countess Adelle von Oriola, formerly Countess von Wesersky. Countess Oriola, who died yesterday, was only 26 years old. She was known throughout Germany as the "Red Countess," on account of her Socialistic opinions. The countess was always a favorite at Munich, even after she had openly joined the Socialistic party, and gave her whole private fortune to the party and took a very active part in organizing the Socialists in southern Germany. She leaves two children.

Former Police Captain in Trouble.

Frank Mauro, Luigi Perla, Salvana Stratta and William Duncan, on suspicion of being implicated in the assault on Gaetano Scarsi, in Tunnel street, were held yesterday for investigation. Duncan was sent to the Homeopathic hospital with a fractured ankle, which the police think he sustained in the fight. He at one time was a captain of police. Scarsi, the injured man, is still at the hospital, but not seriously hurt.

Boy Fell from a Car.

Wilbur Fisher, aged 12 years, of No. 3 Blaine alley, Allegheny, fell from a car yesterday afternoon, at North avenue and East street, striking his head on the curb. He was picked up unconscious, but recovered later.

News of the Rivers.

The stage of water at Davis Island dam at 9 o'clock last night was 5.8 feet and the river was falling.

The Pittsburgh wharf was one of the quietest places in the city yesterday. No boats arrived or departed during the forenoon. Boat Dravo J. Tomlison, closing the season passenger, made the Monongahela workers go to a different place for their amusement.

The water is sufficient in the lower Ohio to permit navigation of light draft boats, but until the Monongahela and the Allegheny rise considerably no boats can be taken south. Light packets are being run, but they carry less cargo than when the river is high.

TREASURY VAULTS ARE WELL FILLED

Never Before Have the Government's Finances Been in Such Good Shape.

DIFFICULT TASK TO MANAGE

Available Cash Balance as Shown by Secretary Shaw's Books Reach the Unprecedented Figure of $308,079,526. Funds to Be Put in Circulation.

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Room 10, Postal Building.
WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 20.

Secretary Shaw's policy of increasing the deposits in the national banks is forced upon him by the operation of the revenue laws and the independent treasury system. Never before in the history of the United States has the national treasury been in as strong condition as it is at present. The receipts are running ahead of the expenditures at an average rate of about $1,000,000 per week, and are constantly increasing the available cash balance, which now stands at the unprecedented figure of $239,562,879. This is the balance as stated on the books of the treasury department. Strictly speaking it is much larger, for whenever any money is credited to a United States disbursing officer it is at once charged out as a liability and is deducted from the cash balance, though it may remain in the treasury for months. There are thus charged out at the present time $42,918,308 credited to disbursing officers and $5,608,341 credited to the postoffice department account to meet the current expenditures of the postal service. If these two items, which may be described as the balance set apart for immediate needs, are added to the available cash balance, as stated on the books, they bring the total to $308,079,526. If the gold reserve of $150,000,000, which was counted in the cash balance prior to the act of March 14, 1900, should be added to this total, it would bring the grand total of cash up to $458,079,526.

Next to the management of the finances of the country, when the receipts are too small to meet the expenditures, there is no task so difficult for a secretary of the treasury as the management of such a large cash balance.

The only practicable way for the secretary of the treasury to put the government funds into circulation is to distribute them among the depository national banks. He must keep his fingers on the business pulse of the country and must time his distribution of public moneys so as to meet the periodical demands for increased currency, and when he reduces government deposits he must withdraw funds from the banks at times when there is a slackening of the demands for business for currency. With the receipts of the government constantly running ahead of the expenditures, the deposits in the banks have been increased from time to time until they reached about $150,000,000, including deposits to the credit of disbursing officers. This total had been maintained with little variation for the past year, as Secretary Shaw had resisted all efforts to induce him to increase the deposits until the Colombian senate had rejected the Panama canal treaty and made it certain that he would not be called upon to pay $40,000,000 to the French company and $10,000,000 to the Colombian government. With these payments indefinitely postponed he has been at liberty to meet the fall demand for currency by increasing the deposits.

PRESIDENT PALMA IS PREACHER OF CONTENT

Makes Speech on Ground Upon Which Americans Whipped the Spanish.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS CABLE TO THE GAZETTE.]

SANTIAGO, CUBA, Sept. 20.—Speaking today at the village of El Caney, close to the scene of the battle between the Americans and the Spaniards, President Palma urged the Cuban people to jealously guard the ideas they had obtained by means of intervention.

The presidential party was enthusiastically received on their arrival at El Caney. The alcada having remarked that the gathering was mostly composed of veterans, President Palma assured them that he wanted to pay the army as badly as anybody, because the payment was not only an act of justice, but was necessary to the reconstruction of the country. Nobody loved Cuban independence more than himself, continued the president. The only way to sacrifice the republic would be to bring about a civil war. He believed there was not one veteran in a thousand who would not prefer to maintain the honor of Cuba, even to the extent of forfeiting his soldier's pay. The Cubans, having accepted United States intervention as a means of ending their troubles, were under an obligation to follow those ideals and prove themselves a peaceable people.

Speaking of the appearance of the band of insurrectionists near Santiago, President Palma condemned the hidden instigators of the uprising. The alcade declared that no one within two leagues of El Caney had joined the band.

TWO MORE VESSELS ASHORE ON NEWFOUNDLAND BANKS

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Sept. 20.—The French fishing vessel Algerm went ashore at Cape Ray yesterday, within two miles of the spot where the British steamer Topaze was wrecked yesterday. The crew escaped but saved nothing of their effects. The vessel is a complete wreck. Another French fishing vessel, the Alliance, struck at Miquelon this morning in the fog, which continues. Her crew were rescued.

DEXTER'S DEATH WELL PLANNED

Police Can Find No Trace of the Slayer of the New York Millionaire.

SITUATION IS VERY PECULIAR

Was Shot Down Within Ten Rods of His Summer Home by Man in Ambush—Other Residents Hostile to the Dead Man.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

MALONE, N. Y., Sept. 20.—Fuller details regarding the murder of Orrando P. Dexter, at his summer home at Dexter Park, are to the effect that the fatal shot was fired within 10 rods of his cottage, and stamp the tragedy as one of the most deliberate murders ever committed in this part of the state.

Dexter hitched his horse to a buggy to go to Santa Clara for his mail at about 10 o'clock, an employe named Russell following with another rig almost immediately. When about 10 rods from the cottage the report of a rifle was heard and Dexter fell from his wagon.

A steel bullet struck the back of Dexter's buggy diagonally, passed through the upholstering, struck Dexter near the shoulder blade, the bullet going entirely through his body, inflicting a slight wound upon the horse. These facts were brought out at the inquest held by Coroner Wood. Hon. J. B. Badger, Dexter's attorney, left for New York tonight with the body. The officers have secured no evidence which would lead to an arrest.

Mr. Dexter was 48 years of age, unmarried, and was born in New York city, his father being Henry Dexter, aged 94, now a resident of the latter city. The family is wealthy and the murdered man also owned property at Norwalk, Conn., where he spent considerable of his time. He came to Franklin county about 13 years ago, purchasing a large tract of forest land in the town of Waverly, where he spent a large amount of money in improvements, building an elegant cottage, which was expensively furnished. He built a system of roads through the estate and kept an extensive establishment.

From his first appearance here he had trouble with the residents of the neighborhood, being almost continually engaged in litigation. He once brought impeachment proceedings against District Attorney Millburn of Malone. The commission appointed by Governor Flower could find no grounds for impeachment.

MARINE BAND CANNOT PLAY AT WELCOME HOME

Cardinal Gibbons' Reception Is Marred by Difference on Labor Question.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Cardinal Gibbons will not hear welcome strains from the United States Marine band when he returns to Baltimore on Thursday from Rome. Union labor has forestalled anything like that.

Several hundred members of Washington Roman Catholic churches held a mass meeting tonight to arrange for an excursion to Baltimore to participate in the reception to the cardinal. The Rev. D. J. Stafford of St. Patrick's church made an eloquent address urging all to go who could. He suggested the Washington delegation be led by the band.

Amid the applause which followed John Galloway made a motion that the United States Marine band, under the leadership of Lieut. Santlemann, be employed. E. J. Hannan enthusiastically seconded the nomination. The Washington Catholics wanted to be led by the best band in the country, he said. The proposition seemed on the high road to success as Mr. Hannan sat down. Then he suddenly remembered that he was a union plumber and that the Marine band was a thorn in the side of union musicians and was being warred against by the American Federation of Labor. In a minute Mr. Hannan was on his feet again, evidently much perturbed at having forgotten the union in his enthusiasm.

It would never do, he said, to hire the Marine band. It would be an affront to union labor. This caused other union men in the audience to forget their enthusiasm and remember their unions. They agreed it would be bad to hire the Marine band. Mr. Hannan withdrew his motion.

ALLIED MECHANICS MAY BE DISSOLVED

Steam Fitters' Grievance Carried to the Executive Board of the A. F. of L.

The clash between the Allied Mechanics and the Steam Fitters will be placed in the hands of the executive board of the American Federation of Labor. A committee composed of National Organizer Thomas H. Flynn of the A. F. of L., John O'Brien, president of the Retail Clerks' Protective association, and E. A. Maginn, business agent of the Steam Fitters, left the city yesterday for Washington to appear before the Federation officials.

From all accounts the Allied Mechanics as an organization is fading away. It takes in most crafts that handle hammers. One by one the crafts are affiliating with a separate association, until now only a few crafts belong to the allied trades. The International Association of Mechanics at its last convention voted to take in all the Allied Mechanics that come under the head of mechanics. Since the convention several crafts have affiliated with this organization. The boiler makers, steam fitters, blacksmiths, housesmiths and similar trades have international associations, and most of the Allied Mechanics working at these trades have transferred to the union of their craft. The local Allied Mechanics still contains all crafts in the mechanical line, and consequently have been encroaching on the steam fitters' work.

Another Westinghouse Rumor.

IRWIN, PA., Sept. 20.—(Special.)—For some months the Westinghouse interests have been looking for a tract of land within easy distance of Trafford City. Within the past few weeks representatives have been negotiating for the Walthour farm, near Manor. This tract contains about 200 acres. Only recently the Westmoreland Coal Company purchased the coal and it is said the Westinghouse company is trying to buy it. It is thought they intend to start a new manufacturing plant and town.

Manager and Actress Wed.

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 20.—Charles D. Wilson, manager of the Ward & Vokes company, was married today to Miss Dorothy M. Bird, a member of the company, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. Dr. Mitchell of the First Methodist Episcopal church, in the church chapel. Mr. Wilson's home is in Seattle and Mrs. Wilson is a Boston girl.

COLD SNAP DID IT.

Lots of people came to office of the Philadelphia Company, 435 Sixth avenue, to take advantage of the offer to put in free service connections and set meter free, if you apply this month. They dreaded the inevitable dirt made by coal, which is wasteful as well as dirty.

FINE WEATHER CAUSED PARKS TO BE CROWDED

Only Two More Sundays of the Art Galleries—Arranging Chrysanthemum Show—New Features at Highland Zoo.

The city parks yesterday were filled with visitors who were attracted by the somewhat delayed change in the weather. But two more Sundays remain before the art galleries at the Carnegie institute will be closed, and many people are taking advantage of the good weather to see the exhibits before it is too late. At the conservatory the entire time of the attendants and George W. Burke, superintendent of parks, is devoted to the growth of 15,000 chrysanthemums which will form the annual flower exhibit beginning Founder's day, November 5.

The plants are just beginning to bud, and no fear is felt as to delays of any kind. Superintendent Burke was visited Saturday and yesterday by Professor Irish, who is in charge of Shaw's botenical gardens, St. Louis. The visitor was returning home from Boston, and while there he was shown every attention by Superintendent Burke and William Falconer, superintendent of the Allegheny cemetery. Professor Irish was much pleased with the arrangement of flowers and plants at the Phipps conservatory and so expressed himself. He also admired the broad sweeps of green at Schenley park.

At Highland park the attendance during the day was very large. There was a noticeable number of automobiles and smart traps on the driveways. Superintendent Ernest Trotow of the Highland zoo, during the week added to his collection by the arrival of a great red kangaroo direct from Australia. It was a purchase.

During the week a donkey was born at the zoo, much to the delight of Superintendent Trotow. The animal is now waiting to be named. M. W. Jonnson of Buena Vista, contributed a large blue heron, which is said to be one of the most beautiful ever seen at the zoo.

CHANGE IN NEWSBOYS ON STREET CAR LINES

George Pearson and Justin Schroedel Will Have Charge of Lads Who Sell Papers.

The privilege of selling papers on the cars of the Pittsburgh Railways Company in the two cities has been placed in the hands of George R. Pearson and Justin Schroedel, and today there will be a change in the traction newsboys. Heretofore the privilege of selling has been held by a half dozen men, who found it hard to control their boys.

While the territory was divided, little attention was paid by the lads to the division lines. Trouble resulted from encroachment, and the company officials were constantly annoyed by complaints. Conductors and passengers declared there were too many boys boarding the cars and bothering them. Wherever an open car would stop, at Market, Wood or Smithfield streets, on Fifth avenue, half a dozen boys would generally jump on the running-board. They got in the way of passengers so much that they became a nuisance. While only boys with badges were supposed to board the cars, lads without badges would also get on.

One of these a few days ago jumped off a swiftly moving car on Fifth avenue after "forgetting" to give a woman any change out of half a dollar she had handed him. The woman had no more money and had to borrow a nickel to ride home. She complained to the company, but of course it was impossible to find the boy.

The railways company officials decided it would be better to concentrate the business in one or two hands. Messrs. Pearson and Schroedel have formed a partnership under the style of the Pittsburgh News Agency. They have copyrighted the name and will prosecute anyone using it to sell papers without authority from them. Mr. Pearson will pay special attention to Allegheny, while Mr. Schroedel will look after the Pittsburgh lines. Both will be held responsible for the actions of their employes.

Under the old system the badges were generally recognized by conductors as good for passage. Boys bought the badges at 25 cents each and used them to ride at all times free. The new badges or caps are not good for transportation, except when boys are engaged in selling papers.

MUSIC IN THE PARKS.

Good Attractions and Pleasant Weather Take Thousands to the Traction Resorts.

Delightful weather took thousands to the traction parks yesterday afternoon and evening. At Kennywood, in addition to band concerts, there were Edward A. Webb, a baritone of powerful voice; Robert Smith, a trick club swinger; Fred Nolan, the comedian; E. Devore, a good magician, and several others. At the diversions in the big steeplechase building were well patronized.

Calhoun park had the Fourteenth Regiment band, directed by Signor Nirella, and two good programs were played. H. F. Bibuey, the well-known local singer, was there and sang in his usual pleasing manner; Helen Parks, a young miss in her teens, proved a clever entertainer, and Charles Gangwisch, a baritone, sang several selections in an acceptable manner. The Great Western band, directed by its founder, the veteran musician, B. Weiss, played two fine programs at Oakwood park, with the Colonial Comedy Four as a special feature.

The Greater Pittsburgh band, under the baton of K. W. F. Guenther, pleased two audiences at Southern park. The Imperial quartet, another group of Pittsburgh singers and mandolin players, were very pleasing in their work.

The parks will probably be open for two more Sundays, unless the weather sets in very cold.

M'ARTHUR SPEAKS WORD FOR MAYOR LOW

New York Pastor Says He Is Heroic Moses to Lead Way Out of Wilderness.

[BY PRIVATE WIRE TO THE GAZETTE.]

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—"We have moved out of the Egyptian bondage of the domain of the grafter, the procurer and of scores of like sinners. Seth Low is our heroic Moses in the fierce fight and long journey."

In these words the Rev. Dr. R. S. MacArthur of Calvary Baptist church, in a sermon preached tonight, urged all his hearers to support the fusion candidate.

Said Mr. MacArthur: "Tremendous interests are before us in the approaching contest for the mayoralty. For many years New York has been a synonym for dishonesty, vulgarity and vice in its civic government. Free, intelligent and impartial men all over the world have regarded the organization which so long ruled New York as the most corrupt political body in the history of the race. They have believed there never was in any heathen land in any country or century or organization so vulgar socially, so vicious morally, as this tyrannical trust of municipal politicians.

"Deliverance came with the election of Mayor Low. This contest is not a party issue. Men of all parties ought to march side by side in procuring his renomination and triumphant re-election."

PRIMARY ELECTION LAW DECLARED TO BE LEGAL

New Jersey Supreme Court Justice Defends Recent Enactment of Legislature.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 20.—The primary elections law, passed by the last session of the legislature, has been held to be constitutional in an opinion filed here last night by Justice Garrison of the state supreme court. The law was attacked in mandamus proceedings in the case of a councilmanic nomination made in Hoboken under the old law, the city clerk at Hoboken refusing to receive a certificate of such nomination.

Justice Garrison in his opinion holds that the law is not special because it applies only to general elections, nor is it special because it provides for the nomination of ward officers by direct vote and for the nomination of officers to the larger divisions by delegates.

He further holds that the right to enact a primary elections law is clearly within the legislature's powers. Primary elections, he said, are so far matters of public concern that they are at the discretion of the legislature proper objects of reasonable statutory regulation.
